Mourners to File Past Casket In Church Tomorrow; Weigh Date for Conclave.

(By United Press)

VATICAN CITY—Cardinals who had assembled in Rome to celebrate the triumph of Pius XI in restoring temporal power to the Popes and to felicitate him on 17 years of a reign that had endeared him to the world, met instead today to discuss his death and the election of his successor.

As the cardinals met, the body of the Pope, his face serene in death, lay on a red velvet covered bier in the Sistine chapel awaiting its removal this afternoon to the Basilica of St. Peter's.

Keep Night-Long Vigil.

Throughout the night a member of the Vatican noble guards had stood at each corner of the bier while the head confessors of St. Peter's Basilica, keeping their vigil, recited prayers for the missionary Pope.

This morning, Italian cardinals knelt in prayer for the Pope in the chapel and then presented the condolences of King Victor Emmanuel and members of the royal family to Cardinal Pacelli, acting head of the church pending the election of a new Pope.

Then the more than 40 cardinals, of Italy and other countries, who had come here to celebrate today the tenth anniversary of the Lateran treaty with Italy which restored the Popes to sovereignty, and the more than 200 bishops of the Italian church who had come with them, held mass in honor of the Pope in the Sistine and Pauline chapels.

Elect 262nd Pope.

Next the cardinals assembled for the first of their daily meetings pending the world conclave of cardinals to elect a new Pope, who will be the 262nd in the 19

Millions Pay Homage To Pope Pius, Pictured Here In Death

As millions of Catholics throughout the world mourned the death of Pope Pius XI, the 261st prelate of the Catholic church laid in state today in St. Peter's church. The above radiophoto from Rome shows the Pontiff on his death bed. Meanwhile, in Vatican City, the college of cardinals prepared for a conclave at which a new Pope will be elected.

CHURCH DRAPED IN MOURNING

Streamers of Black and White Hang In St. Peter's In Memory of Pope Pius.

St. Peter's Catholic church began a period of mourning today in memory of Pope Pius XI as streamers of black and white were stretched the entire length of the edifice.

Starting from the choir loft, hundreds of feet of black and white cloth are draped between the pillars, extending to the altar on both sides of the church. The church will remain in mourning until the election of a new pope.

Meanwhile daily prayers for the repose of the soul of the stricken pontiff are being said. The first public service was held last night during the weekly Holy Hour when the "De Profundis," the prayer for the dead was recited.

In a sermon last evening on the Blessed Sacrament, Rev. John Flynn, assistant pastor, pointed out the papacy was another gift of Christ to His church.

"Tonight as we meditate on the Blessed Sacrament, exposed on the altar, it brings to mind other gifts which Christ has given us," Rev. Flynn said. "It is the papacy

G. O. P. to Make Capital Out of Lincoln Birthday

They'll Mark It By Reminding All Emancipator Was a Republican; Observance Here to Be Quiet.

While observation of Lincoln's birthday will be unusually quiet this year as the holiday falls on Sunday, and Mansfield banks will remain open on Monday, the event will be particularly significant this year for Republicans all over the nation, dispatches from Washington stated today.

Republican partisans will turn eyes toward the White House with thoughts of 1940, and will leave no stone unturned to remind the nation that Abraham Lincoln was a Republican—and that tremendous party gains were made at the last election, after more than five years of political obscurity.

Golden Opportunity.

The birthday of the Great Emancipator tomorrow provides an opportunity for nation-wide rallies and speeches such as Republicans have not had since the November elections last year which gave the party many new members in congress and governors in a number of states.

Many observers believe that these newly elected Republican governors have sounded the keynote of the 1940 campaign in the wave of economy that has rolled over their states—and which will undoubtedly be in the foreground of Lincoln day rallies and speeches.

Few public offices will close Monday, the usual legal holiday when holidays fall on Sunday. The social security office and the state liquor stores will be closed—Gov. John W. Bricker ordered a holiday for state departments yesterday—but neither city hall nor county courthouse will be closed, and mail deliveries will be made as usual.

'SECRET BABY'

Singer Marion Talley Fights For Custody of Girl, 3.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—(AP)—A custody suit brought here today by Marion Talley has disclosed the opera, film, and radia soprano is the mother of a 3-year-old daughter.

In a suit seeking return of the child, Susan Eckstrom, Miss Talley charged that Adolph Eckstrom, her husband and former singing teacher, was a "man of immoral character" and "financially unable to give the child a suitable home."

She said that Eckstrom, to whom she was secretly married on March 23, 1935, kept their daughter in a Manhattan penthouse and had neglected to give her a needed eye operation.

Attorneys said Miss Talley had kept secret the birth of the child because she thought it might hinder her career.

BERLIN SENDS FRANCE BID TO PEACE PARLEY

Central Europe, Spain And Italy's Aspirations Up For Discussion.

PARIS CONSULTS LONDON

French Confer With British On Proposed Talks With Nazi Foreign Minister.

(By United Press)

PARIS — The German government today invited Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet to go to Berlin to talk over general European peace problems with Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, the foreign office made known.

Central Europe, Spain and Italy's aspirations were mentioned as chief problems suggested for discussion.

It was said that Robert Coulondre, new French ambassador to Berlin, came here specially several days ago with a report of talks he had had with Ribbentrop, who then emphasized that a conference with Bonnet would logically follow the recent signature of a France-Germany good neighbor treaty, which Ribbentrop came here to sign.

France was understood to be consulting the British government on the proposed talks because of the desire to keep all French-British continental policies co-ordinated.

Britain, France to Recognize Franco Rule.

LONDON—(INS)—Recognition of Spanish Insurgent Generalissimo Franco by Great Britain and France, possibly next week, was regarded in London today to be a virtual certainty.

Judicial experts of Whitehall and the Quai D'Orsay are understood to have paved the way to recognition by advising the British and French government that the Spanish government of Premier Juan Negrin no longer has legal existence.

Their attitude, it was learned,

STATE RESTS

Dewey Closes Case Against Hines In Rackets Trial.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The prosecution rested today in the retrial of James J. Hines, Tammany district leader, on lottery-conspiracy charges in connection with the $20,000,000-a-year policy racket dominated by the late Dutch Shultz.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey wound up the state's case in a whirlwind climax to the 3-week-old second trial of Hines whom he accused of using political influence to protect the Schultz gambling syndicate.

Judge Charles C. Nott, jr., adjourned the trial over the weekend to permit chief Defense Counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker time to prepare the defense opening.

Fire Helps Solve School Merger Plan

Fire which destroyed a grade school building at Adario, Thursday, appeared today to have provided the first step in solving the problem of consolidating the Butler township schools which has puzzled township and county school officials for two years.

With the 30 pupils who attended classes in the building transferred to the high school, Supt. Charles Kirkwood said today that there is slight possibility that a new grade school will be built in the township.

"Under the present conditions we think it is advisable to care for the 30 grade pupils in the high school building for the rest of this term and until another plan is worked out," Kirkwood said.

Despite an order from the state department of education to consolidate the high school with another district and merge the township's two grade schools, residents of the Adario community have battled to keep their schools.

The state department had proposed that the Adario high school be consolidated with a four-township district including Weller, Franklin, Bloominggrove and Butler townships.

A blaze which is believed to have started from an overheated stove razed the old one-room brick building before school opened Thursday. Pupils from the third to sixth grades attended classes in the building. Other grade pupils are housed in a second one-room building near the high school and in the high school building.

The blaze had gained so much headway in the old school when Miss Miriam Wolfe, who lives nearby, discovered it that no attempt was made to fight the flames.

Mayor Thinks Turner Can Now Handle Sewage Plant Alone Without Supervision.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter will go to Columbus Tuesday on a two-fold mission of city business, both of which will be taken up with Fred H. Waring, chief engineer of the state health department.

One will be a request for permission to dispense with the full time services of a technical engineer in a supervisory capacity for the Mansfield sewage disposal plant, which will mean a saving of approximately $1,500 a year for the city.

The other mission will be to discuss Mansfield's sewer problem and the proposed overhauling of the city's entire sewer system.

In February, 1938 James Turner, Mansfield engineer, was retained as engineer and operator of the Mansfield sewage disposal plant. At that time the state health department gave its approval to the appointment only on condition that an engineer experienced in sewage disposal work,

SMALL STAFFS AT HOSPITALS HIT IN REPORT

Survey Indicates 18,000 In State Institutions Cared For By 41 Doctors.

LACK OF FUNDS BLAMED

Sherwood Says Finances Put Curb on State Treatment Of Mental Diseases.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The legislature will be asked for more money for doctors, nurses and clinical equipment for the state's mental hygiene institutions, State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood announced today.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—The welfare department set to work in earnest today to correct conditions in the state's institutions for insane and feeble-minded which were deplored in a report by three experts in the treatment of mental diseases.

The first step, Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said, will be to ask for a larger appropriation so that additional physicians and nurses can be hired.

Salaries of physicians should be increased, the director said, to make the positions more attractive.

One Doctor for 400.

Ohio has about 18,000 patients in the insane division alone, and with only 41 assistant and resident physicians now employes, the ratio is about one doctor for 400 patients.

The report of the mental disease experts recommended one physician for each 200 patients and never less than one for 300.

Lack of funds was blamed for existing conditions by Sherwood, who said:

"This condition has existed for years in these institutions and no one in particular is to blame for them. There just wasn't enough money available."

The director was unable to say at this time how many additional doctors and nurses will be employed.

More Recoveries Possible.

Signed by Dr. E. A. Baber, Dr. O. O. Fordyce and Dr. J. F. Bateman, all members of the welfare department staff, the report asserted that more mental case recoveries could be effected if the institutions had better facilities.

Director Sherwood today concurred in the report, which was submitted at a meeting in nearby Orient of members of the managing officers association of the department.

CHEERS BANKERS

End of Business Recession Looms, Benson Says.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— President Philip A. Benson of the American Bankers association took a look at to-day's business upturn and predicted that if it continued throughout the year the nation could look for an end to the forces which have been holding it back.

Benson struck the note of encouragement in an address last night concluding the association's two-day regional conference here, attended by delegates from 12 states.

He warned, however, that 1939 was a crucial year for the "American system of free enterprise" and asserted that confidence was business recovery's "great need."

"This can not spring from artificial means," he said, "but must come from natural sources."

Mercury Skids From 50 Down To 12 – Will Climb Up Slowly

From a balmy 50 to a bitter 12—that tells the story of Mansfield's weather in the last 24 hours.

And "continued cold tonight; Sunday fair, slowly rising temperature" tells the story of what can be expected over the week-end.

The range in temperature from yesterday to noon today was one of the greatest in the state—Columbus had a 41-degree drop, as compared to Mansfield's 38-degree change.

It was due, apparently, to a severe cold wave attended by freakish gales, snow, sleet, rain, dust and electrical storms, spread from the Rocky Mountains northeastward to the St. Lawrence valley today. The storms disrupted transportation and communications and caused at least 15 deaths over the nation.

The bitter cold, which in some sections dropped the mercury to as low as 25 degrees below zero, gripped the middle and upper Mississippi and lower Ohio valleys, the Great Lakes region and the northern portions of New York and New England.

Heavy snow blanketed Minnesota, northern Wisconsin, Upper Michigan, the Dakotas and most of the western plain states. High winds, some of tornado force, damaged property and killed livestock in southern Illinois and Indiana.

Forecasters expected generally fair weather by Sunday with rising temperatures over most sections. He said the country should experience normal winter weather the first of next week.

The temperature in Mansfield had climbed only to 24 despite the efforts of a bright sun.

Lincoln Shrines Draw Thousands

ABRAHAM LINCOLN was born 130 years ago tomorrow—and died almost three quarters of a century ago—but shrines to his memory still are visited by thousands of Americans annually. Custodians at memorials in his home state, Illinois, say annual attendance has multiplied several times since the shrines were opened. As good roads made it easier for more and more tourists to visit the sites, the number rose steadily. There was a drop during the depression years but attendance figures were high in 1938 at these historic sites:

LINCOLN'S HOME at Springfield. He lived here before his election as president, and his four sons were born here. Miss Virginia Brown, custodian, says attendance has grown in the past 15 years from about 82,000 to 117,319 last year.

NEW SALEM STATE PARK, Rutledge Tavern, shown here is a feature of the recently restored village of New Salem, Ill., where Lincoln lived six years. Couple here are posing as young Abe and Ann Rutledge. Custodian William C. Young says that in 1933, the first year, about 25,000 persons came to New Salem; in 1938, about 250,000.

Wilbur Kennedy, who rated second, was sworn into service as police captain and David Robertson, who has been serving as special patrolman, was given the oath as regular patrolman. Patrolman Anton Spaeth was the third man taking the examination.

CUTS RELIEF

Ashland Commissioners Set $5 Monthly Allowance.

ASHLAND — County commissioners here have ordered all relief subdivisions in this county to distribute relief allocations on the basis of $5 per month per person instead of the former average of $5.77. The move is effective as of Feb. 1.

It was announced that any cost above the average of $5 per person per month must be met by the subdivisions from local general funds. It was stated that the order issued by commissioners which will reduce the amounts to be paid by the county is in compliance with state relief laws now in effect.

With the majority of the subdivisions paying $4 monthly per person for the costs of relief, major difference will be in Ashland city, where relief costs per person have been an average of $8.10. There is only one other township which has a higher average cost than Ashland, and that is Milton township, with an average of $12.62, but it is not a part of the county relief unit.

'Fight to End' Negrin Informs Insurgents.

PERPIGNAN, France — (INS) — With the defiant announcement that they would carry on "to the end," Premier Juan Negrin of Spain and Gen. Jose Miaja, hero of the defense of Madrid, today continued to wage war on the Insurgents from the central and southeastern zone.

Thus the struggle entered a new phase, with a communique from Insurgent headquarters flatly announcing that the war was concluded so far as Catalonia was concerned.

"Our victorious forces have reached all frontier posts along the French border from Puigcerda to Port Bou," was the triumphant announcement of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Negrin and his foreign minister flew to Valencia yesterday from French soil, and were promptly greeted by an Insurgent bombardment of the port area in which two British ships were struck.

The premier and Julio Alvarez del Vayo, his foreign minister, conferred with Gen. Miaja, and afterwards the flat announcement that resistance would be continued was made. Negrin said the government's headquarters would be established at Madrid, the capital before the civil war broke out.

be hired in an advisory and supervisory capacity.

James R. Collier, superintendent of the Elyria sanitation plant, was named at a salary of $1,500 a year, or $125 a month for any time over the year.

Hunter said today that the stipulated period had expired, and that he believed Turner could now operate the plant without supervision. He said he would ask Waring for permission to dispense with Collier's services except when specifically needed.

The mayor said that he would also discuss the sewer problem with Waring, especially with regard to making a survey of the system.

Hunter today turned over articles of legislation and other material to City Solicitor Marion D. Ward, which has to do with the status for a fund of $7,943 left after construction of the sewage disposal plant two years ago, asking for an opinion on the legality of using the fund for a sewer survey and to apply on a possible sewer project.

The same comparison showed a slight decline in the entire state, but an increase of $43,765 over the corresponding week in 1938 was listed in the report.

FIND $25,000 HOME OF WOMAN PENCIL PEDDLER IN CLEVELAND

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—County officials who had planned to bury Mrs. Martha Burchell, 72, sidewalk peddler of pencils and shoestrings, in potter's field, today prepared to send her body to Hamilton, Ont.—when they found she was the owner of a $25,000 home there.

The busines card of an attorney, Mrs. Sarah Hedrick, was found among the belongings of the little, old, ragged lady who wandered through downtown streets pleading with passersby to buy her wares.

Mrs. Hedrick, who said she met Mrs. Burchell 18 years ago when she represented her in an accident case, told this story in probate court:

Mrs. Burchell, who died Tuesday in a charity home for the aged of injuries received in a fall on an icy sidewalk, owned a $25,000 home in Hamilton, Ont., which produced $140 a month rent. She had several valuable antiques and much old finery, which she kept in the attic of a rooming house where she lived.

"People always felt sorry for her," Mrs. Hedrick said. "She used to make as much as $8 and $10 a day on the streets. She would keep just enough of it to provide a meager existence and send the rest to a Canadian bank to apply on the mortgage of her home. The mortgage was just about paid off."

Previous to 1934 Mrs. Burchell had served as an artist's model, Mrs. Hedrick said.

A special court of three judges, including Judge C. H. Huston of the Richland county common pleas court, today disbarred Joseph and Charles Rubinstein, Cleveland attorneys, for "ambulance chasing" and other unethical practices.

The same court suspended Seymour Terrell, an associate of the Rubinsteins, from law practice for one year on the same counts.

Judge Huston, Judge Guy B. Findley of Lorain county, and Judge C. U. Ahl of Crawford county have been in Cleveland for the past two weeks to preside during the trial of the accused lawyers.

Judge Huston will return to his own court Monday to hear a number of equity cases and dispose of a case involving Fred Warren, Mansfield, who pleaded guilty to an indictment for non-support.

SIGNS LIQUOR TRUCKING ENTRY

Judge's Action Results In $350,000 Saving to State In Hauling Fees.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — An entry which settled the taxpayers' suit against Shaw Transport, Inc., and which saved the state an estimated $350,000 on trucking of liquor had approval of Common Pleas Judge Cecil J. Randall today.

Under the agreement, Shaw Transport's contract for hauling liquor for the state will be taken over by Ohio Delivery, Inc. Whereas Shaw Transport received 17 cents a case for hauling, Ohio Delivery will receive only 11½ cents. The contract has two years to run.

Shaw Transport will receive $39,000 which was tied up by injunction and must pay $10,000 attorney fees to Mrs. Agnes B. Dickinson of Columbus, who brought the taxpayer suit. The company also will receive $37,000 held by the state auditor.

The state will receive $112,000, the alleged amount of overcharge to the state, less an attorney fee similar to that paid by the transport firm. The state's saving on trucking during the next two years is estimated at $250,000.

The taxpayer suit was brought after the state senate graft investigating committee a year ago revealed that Shaw Transport had sublet its hauling contract and that John F. Nolan, Steubenville Democratic leader, was a member of the transport company.

270 HIRED FOR WPA JOBS HERE

New Assignments Ordered on Flood Program; 150 Go to Work Monday Morning.

Assignment of 270 new men to WPA road and ditch projects in Richland county was announced today by H. S. Hursh, engineer in charge of a county flood control program, who said two new projects will be launched Monday.

The assignments will increase the county WPA employment, however, by about 130 men since 140 of the new workers will replace others who were ruled ineligible and dismissed in a statewide WPA shake-up.

Hursh said 150 of the men will go to work Monday morning, including 100 on the Possum run ditch south of Mansfield and 50 on a storm sewer project in Lincoln Heights.

The others were at work today on road and ditch projects throughout the county. Addition of the new men will boost total WPA employment in the county to 973 men and women.

The road and ditch programs which were launched last year are the major projects in the county, providing jobs for 600 men.

Activities in the ditch program will be concentrated in Mansfield for at least two months, Hursh said, with the project calling for dredging of Ritter's run, Touby's run, and Rocky Fork creek and the building of flood retaining walls at danger points within the city limits.

The Ritter's run project was started this week opposite the Armory at East Fourth street and Ashland road. About 140 men were on the project today.

A Farmer's Diary

Breath of Spring.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE dawn broke cold and clear, with not even a streak of cloud to mar the blue of the starry dome. The level sunbeams soon pointed westward over the wide snowy expanses. I greeted this early hour with keen delight, and walked about the barn, then into the silent meadow and along the neighboring hillside. The cool tang of the morning air penetrated deep into my lungs, and ave that pleasant pain that fades too soon into warmth and comfort as a man becomes accustomed to the cold.

But that was early. Toward noon, a brisk south wind began to blow. The snow rapidly softened, and blotches of moist, drab faded green began to show, scattered over uplands and meadows. The water ran in streams into the spouting, from melting snow that clung upon the roof.

In the late afternoon I walked down through the pasture, and found the little brook alive and free from the icy chain that had bound it just that morning. It flowed, a brimming little river, at my feet.

I followed it. I saw it glide beneath an icy cover. Bubbles floated on either side, making a motley chain that wove into lacy patterns. Still farther on, shelving plates of ice hung suspended above little rapids. Here water and air bubbles raced intermittently along the smooth under-surface, like myriad little animals. The water made a tinkling sound, delicate and sweet, unlike the voice of the brook at any other season.

The little stream traveled on a bed of long, wavy grass that moved in graceful, bronzy green streamers in the direction the playful currents flowed. Beneath the limpid water, showed the tender green of fresh, new grass.

Behind the hill, the south wind blew even more mildly, and here I stood awhile, and was happy for this pleasant hint of spring.

TRIPLE HOLIDAY ADDS TO SOCIAL FUNCTIONS

Many Affairs Commemorate Statesmen's Birthdays, Romantic Holiday This Week With Dinners, Teas, Parties.

By FRANCES E. GENSLEY

WITH the approach of three holidays—two patriotic and one dedicated to the romantic things of life—there are plenty of opportunities for all kinds of social functions during the coming week. Tonight, you know, the annual Valentine dance of the University club is the featured entertainment at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Tomorrow there will be nothing of a social or club nature to entertain Mansfielders, but the first of the week promises plenty by way of contrast to a quiet Sabbeth. If you can interrupt the making of favors for that Valentine dinner Tuesday night long enough, let's look over the calendar for next week and see what plans our clubs have made for us.

Looking Over the Week's Calendar.

Monday.

When the Mary Washington chapter of the D. A. R. meets we can always count on an elaborate and important program. The meeting Monday, which will be held at the home of Mrs. E. J. Gilbert, promises two entertaining papers when Mrs. Clifford G. Hillier, and Mrs. Glenn M. Hoover give a book report and a talk on films.

Associate hostesses for the event are Mrs. Weston Cutter and Mrs. L. H. Wales. Although it's a little previous the same evening members of the Rachel France guild will be enjoying a Washington birthday party at the church. Usual business will occupy members of the American Legion auxiliary when half a hundred or so of the members gather at the home.

The program outlined by the committee of the Little Flower Study club will be continued the same evening when the club is entertained by Mrs. J. F. Ehalt at her home on Brinkerhoff avenue.

Other sessions planned for Monday include the luncheon meeting of St. Peter's guild with Mrs. F. A. Voegele at the hotel, the meeting of the consumer purchasing group of A. A. U. W. at Mrs. M. W. Hieber's, the session of the Alpha Delta Pi City club with Helen Anderson on Parkwood boulevard, the Penguin meeting with Mrs. John Farshler, and the covered-dish dinner to be served at the parish house to Madam Cotta class members.

Tuesday.

Tuesday will be an overwhelmingly busy day, and space will prevent a detailed account of all the activities planned on that date. Among the parties planned is the one being given the Chi Sigma Mothers club for their daughters, members of Chi Sigma sorority, at the Women's Club, the buffet supper for members of A. A. U. W. at the hotel, and the party for Beta Kappa Tau girls at Isabel Kass' home on West Third street.

Both the Tourist club and the Tuesday Book club will be busy with study programs and social affairs combined. Mrs. A C. Tuttle, Summit court, is hostess for a colonial tea to be given for the former group, while the latter organization will assemble at the Donald Black residence, Raemelton House.

In addition to meetings by several dozen card clubs, and church groups there will also be a meeting of the Fortnight club at the Women's Club with Miss Florence Sloane. There will be several school groups in session, too.

Wednesday.

Little let-up in activity is promised for Wednesday, but fewer strictly social functions are planned. A dramatic program is scheduled for presentation before members of the Teachers Wives club when Mrs. George Sherman, 648 Arlington avenue, entertains. Mrs. Paul Elliot and Mrs. Roy McGinty have been announced as guest speakers

Associate hostesses include Mrs. Zane Wilson, Mrs. Fred Elder, Mrs. J. C Stout, Mrs. Earl Heasley, and Mrs R O McFarland.

Also set for Wednesday is the final book review to be given by Mrs. W E. Benninghoff. She will review "Benjamin Franklin" by Carl VanDoren before members and friends of the Women's Association of the First Congregational church at 2:15 p m in the church auditorium.

Mansfield Junior Sorosis members will gather at the home of Dorothy Moser on Greenwood avenue to hear a program on the World's Fair by Miss Mildred Angle. Nomad members will have luncheon with Mrs J. C. Wilson, Blymyer avenue, the same afternoon.

Dinner meetings are being planned by the Rebekah lodge at the I. O. O. F. hall, the Prospect Park association at the park pavilion, and Auxiliary No. 100 to the Sons of Union Veterans. In addition to these affairs there will be both business and social functions held by a number of study groups, card clubs, church units and welfare organizations.

Thursday.

Turning again to Thursday we find plenty there to keep the average Mansfielder occupied. Of widest interest will be the lecture Thursday afternoon by Andre Dubord at the Women's Club. Mr. Dubord will speak on oriental art at 2:30 p. m. before members of the Mansfield Federation of Women. Members of the board and others in the Federation will lunch at the club at 1 p. m.

During the evening girls in the three Mansfield chapters of Gamma Gamma Gamma sorority will be entertained in Ashland by Epsilon chapter. A covered-dish dinner will be a feature of the meeting of the St. Paul Thursday Nighters at the church. Circle Four of the First Presbyterian church will present a program before the meeting of the guild, and sessions of the various circles of the First M. E. church will be held at private homes during the afternoon.

Other groups meeting include the Busy Bees, Italian Social club, Fireside club, Chatter club, Druscilla club, Atlas club and Happityme club. Study pursuits will be followed by members of the study group of the Music club, and by the Joan of Arc club.

Friday.

Still it continues, and exciting it is too, for another big event in club circles is set for Friday. The Music Study club is presenting Lila P. Robeson, Cleveland artist, in a program at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Assisting will be Miss Teressa Pfeifer, Mrs. Paul Williams, Mrs. Paul Cropper and John Grabler.

Miss Robeson is a teacher of applied voice at Western Reserve university in Cleveland, and has appeared many times as guest artist at the Bach festival sponsored by Baldwin-Wallace college at Berea.

During the afternoon members of the Cottage Garden club will be the guests of Mrs. B. F Hagelbarger, West Third street. The affair will be a 1 o'clock luncheon followed by a program. Other than this there will be sessions of the Esther class of the Mayflower Congregational church, the Gleaners class of the U. B. church and of Captain Stephenson's class of the First Presbyterian church.

Several social groups and a lodge will meet also.

Saturday.

The end of the week, but not the end of exciting affairs. Starting off the morning bright and early will be the marriage of Miss Mary Lou Hehman and David T. Marantette at St. Peter's Catholic church at 9 o'clock. In the evening a holiday dance will be sponsored by the Our club. The affair will be a dinner-dance beginning at 7:30 p. m.

Members of the committee in charge are Mr. and Mrs. J T. Lusignan, Mr and Mrs. John F. Bissman, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Stoodt and Mr. and Mrs. Estes C. Thompson The function will be held in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Railway Mail association will be entertained at the Blue Lantern in Crestline by Mrs. F C McNeal, Mrs W. G. Lambert, Mrs C. B. Harmon and Mrs. E. G. Anderson. There will be an afternoon meeting of the Crescendo club when the members gather at the home of Jean Gardiner on Helen avenue to hear the broadcast of the opera. Pinochle club members will be guests of Mrs. Elizabeth Crosky at her Glessner avenue home the same day.

Regrets Spite Marriage

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Mine is a story as old as the hills I suppose, but perhaps you can help me as you have helped others.

Before my marriage, I went "steady" with a young man for two years. Through a misunderstanding we separated. Soon after, I married another boy, which was a "spite" marriage, against my father's wishes. We have a five-year-old boy. But it seems as if things aren't right at all, and I'm not happy.

In the past few weeks, I ran into this ex-boy friend accidently, and have gone out with him several times, without my husband's knowledge. And now we realize we're still in love with one another. How can I tell my husband about this, without causing him too much unhappiness?

JACQUELINE.

Well, my dear, we either make the best of our mistakes or become quitters. You have a little boy who is entitled to both mother's and father's love and protection, and should have a normal happy home life. Children are not responsible for "spite" marriages, and it's too bad they are the real victims.

If you left your husband and married your ex-boy friend, you'd probably find life has just as many problems. Please don't jump from the frying pan into the fire.

Father Says No Girl Friends For Him.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

In about a month I'll be 18 years old, and I can't understand why my father objects to my association with girls. My mother is dead. I had a girl, and took her to the movies. When my father found it out, he forbade me to go with her again. I supposed it was this particular girl he didn't approve of, but when I took out other girls in my class at high school, he still objected.

Finally I asked if he had a good reason, and all he said was that I do not earn enough money to support a wife, which is beside the point, because I have no idea of marrying for a long time. I just want to go out and have a good time.

Please advise me. Do you think it would be all right for me to go with girls without telling him, or has my father the right to forbid me the society of nice girls?

JIM E.

I can't see any reason why your father should object to your having girl friends. The best way for young people to avoid that phase of adolescence called girl or boy "crazy," as the case may be, is to know plenty of young people of both sexes.

That does away with the mystery. If Mary is silly, stupid and jealous, boys will find it out more quickly if they took her out occasionally than if they just worshipped from afar. Or if Max is greedy and never helps build the fire when on a wienie roast and just thinks about being waited upon, Janie isn't going to indulge in day dreams about Max.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I will get Mary directly," I told Philip Veritzen with a carefully casual manner.

"Well! you're all in one piece, I see," she whispered. "Did the renowned victory perch on the equally famous banner? Did you tame him? Is it safe to come out into the open?"

"The first two questions are irrelevant," I told her in equally low tones. "To the last one I'll give you an unqualified affirmative. But there's something you have to do for him immediately, something extremely unpleasant which will tax your temper and your endurance to the limit, so brace yourself for it now. I can't let you say no, for it is something I proposed myself."

"I'm ready for anything," she said. "What is it you want me to do?"

"You are to go through your role for him from start to finish," I said.

She swallowed hard, then valiantly gave me a gamin grin.

"I thought that was it," she said. "Of course you want me to give him his own version."

"Of course," I whispered back. "He must not dream of what we are really doing until the time for our grand surprise. But darling, you must watch yourself today so closely. Not by the slightest inflection or nuance of gesture must you betray that you have ever read the role in any other manner than the wooden lifeless one he imposed upon you."

"I won't fail you, Auntie Madge," she whispered. "I know you've arranged this in order to help me, and I shall be on my toes every second. When do I begin?"

"At once. He is sitting opposite this door waiting for your entrance. Stay out of sight until I call you. I shall go back now into the other room, leaving the door ajar, and when I have seated myself in my usual place, ready to cue you, I shall say, 'Now, Mary.' At the word, you will make your first entrance as you always do, and go on from there."

She threw up her hand in a gesture of resignation.

"'We who are about to die, salute you!'" she quoted, with a twisted little grin, and upon that grim gibe I left her, and went back into the living room, where Philip Veritzen sat, looking, I reflected, not unlike an implacable old Roman emperor himself.

"Well!" he demanded. "Is she willing to rehearse for me?"

"But, of course," I responded suavely. "She is delighted to have the opportunity to show you how hard she has worked."

"She will be out in a few seconds now," I said, and going to my desk, I took out the battered "sides" of the role. I did not need them to cue Mary, for my memory was functioning perfectly, but I felt as if I needed something to hold in my hands to hide the tremors which I anticipated would agitate my nerves before the coming ordeal was finished. When I had seated myself again, I raised my voice ever so slightly, and called, "Now, Mary!"

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Feb. 12.

Sunday's horoscope is a favorable one for all cultural and social or affectional activities, although there is a menace of excesses, extravagance and impetuosity, as well as over-zealous indulgences. A danger of litigation because of such rashness or want of reserve and restraint is apparent.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of auspicious conditions in domestic, social and emotional affiliations, provided a tendency to indulgence, extravagance and acts of turbulence and impulse is curbed. Overconfidence, optimism and want of sufficient restraint might bring about legal entanglements.

A child born on this day may be gay, light-hearted, irresponsible and self-indulgent, acting through impulse and waywardness. And while being genial and generous, its indulgences may find it running counter to authority.

For Monday, Feb. 13.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a definite swing away from long static and unproductive conditions, with a pronounced upturn to all property values and lagging investments. While this promises a stabilization of the fortunes, there also are snares and pitfalls to be prepared for by vigilance and sagacity.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a trend away from stagnations and crystallization of the affairs. There is definite promise of an up-swing in investments and property values, with fortunes gaining much stability and security. However, there are portents of sinister omen through fraud, cheating, treachery and collusion to sweep this away unless unusual vigilance and sound tactics be exercised.

A child born on this day may be versatile and resourceful, with much stability of character and steadfastness.

THEATERS

"Jesse James."

FROM the studios of Hollywood to the wild beauty of the Missouri Ozarks went the technical staff and the players of 20th Century-Fox, who made "Jesse James" in color. In the natural setting in which the amazing career of the James boys was worked out, the Hollywood players mingled with the hill folks of Missouri, many of whom are in the picture. Tyrone Power depicts the most spectacular outlaw and desperado in American history, with Henry Fonda as his brother, Frank, who escaped the law and lived many years after the James name had become an American tradition. Nancy Kelly and Randolph Scott are starred with Power and Fonda, while John Carradine plays Bob Ford "the dirty little coward who shot Mr. Howard," according to the old ballad. The picture opens at the Ohio tomorrow.

"Topper Takes a Trip."

The delightful "Topper" has a sequel and it opens at the Madison with a midnight matinee tonight. Only Cary Grant is missing from the original cast, but the other principals of "Topper"—the "ghost" of Constance Bennett, Roland Young, Billie Burke and others—make merry in "Topper Takes a Trip." New characters introduced are Verree Teasdale, Alan Mowbray, Franklin Pangborn and the dog that has been known variously as Skippy, Mr. Atlas, and Asta. In this latest adventure of Cosmo Topper, bewildered little banker, Miss Bennett tries again to straighten out his marital entanglements.

"Boys Town."

One of the most talked-of pictures of the year is "Boys Town" which returns to Mansfield Sunday at the Ritz. This is the story of Father Flanagan, the founder of Boys Town, Neb., which started as a refuge for small, homeless and incorrigible boys, and has since grown into one of the world's most unique communities. Spencer Tracy plays Father Flanagan and Mickey Rooney is a young smart-alec who is regenerated at Boys Town. A romantic yarn, "Personal Secretary," with William Gargan, Joy Hodges and Andy Devine, is also booked.

This picture, one of the Majestic features on Sunday and Monday, gives Dick Powell one of his best roles in the crooner from Brooklyn who is stranded at a dude ranch and who sings his way out of a lot of trouble. The rancher's daughter is Priscilla Lane whose sympathy is with the Easterner from the beginning—to the disgust of the handsome cowhand, Dick Foran. Pat O'Brien is co-starred with Powell as the theatrical agent. A second feature is Lloyd C. Douglas' "White Banners."

"Pride of the Navy."

James Dunn and Rochelle Hudson are starred in "Pride of the Navy" which the Park offers the first three days of the week. The construction of a speed boat which will have tremendous speed, yet can be easily maneuvered and at the same time able to launch a torpedo without upsetting, is the theme of the plot. A three-way love story revolves around it. Then there will be a Joe Penner comedy, "I'm From The City" in which Joe is a timid circus performer, scared to death of horses, but riding like a Cossack when hypnotized.

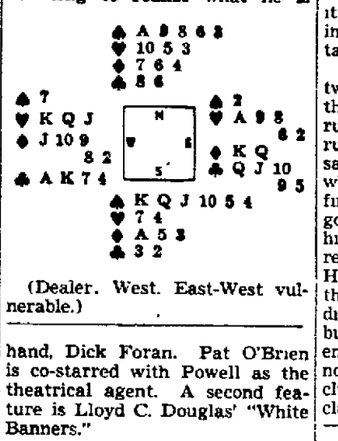
GET OUT OF THE WAY!

KEEP YOUR WITS about you and notice what your partner is trying to tell you. If he has bid a suit and then during the play extends a high-low signal to you, he surely is trying to give you some sort of a message. If you don't manage to read it, or if you take too long to realize what he is screaming at you, disaster is likely to befall your side.



(Dealer. West. East-West vulnerable.)

West opened here with 1-Diamond, East bid 1-Heart, South 1-Spade, West 2-Clubs, North 2-Spades, East 4-Clubs, South 4-Spades, West 5-Clubs and North sacrificed at 5-Spades, which East doubled. To make the set profitable, in lieu of a vulnerable game, it would have to be four tricks, or in other words, six tricks must be taken.

West peeled off two heart tricks, two clubs and then shifted to a third round of hearts, which South ruffed. As three spades were being run, West, a quite canny player, saw a possible danger arising, so when he discarded diamonds used first his 9 and then his deuce. East got the idea and then threw off his diamond Q. Declarer suddenly realized what she should do. Hoping that East oringinally held the diamond king-queen alone, he did not first lay down his ace, but led a small diamond. Sure enough, East had to win it and had nothing to return but a heart or club. He picked up a club, so declarer discarded a diamond from his own hand and ruffed the trick in dummy. He then cashed the diamond ace, and finished with trump tricks, having lost only two hearts, two clubs and one diamond. If he had run another round of trumps, so East could have discarded the diamond K, he would have lost two diamond tricks.

Monday's Problem.

Patty shells may be made by covering the outside of muffin pans with a rich pie dough, piercing it with a fork and baking it until it is a delicate light brown color. (About 8 minutes of cooking will be required.) The dough also may be pressed inside the pans. Such baked shells serve as containers for creamed foods. They also may be filled with fruit or sweet mixtures and used as dessert dishes.

Tygers Topple Willard for Fourth Straight Victory

FIGHT FANS TO SEE CAPABLE FLOCK OF FIST SWINGERS TUESDAY.

By OSCAR RUHL.

FIGHT fans are promised a first-class amateur carnival at the Friendly House Tuesday night.

Co-Matchmakers Mike Wentz and Johnny Villella have arranged what stacks up as one of the finest cards ever presented in a Mansfield amateur ring.

In addition to a flock of capable Friendly House leather pushers, the card will include a host of talented mittsters from outside of the city limits.

Heading the show will be Ernie and Melvin McKinley of Ashland, who rate as the district's outstanding fist swingers. Their opponents have not been named, but Wentz and Villella cannot find any foes too tough for them, we're sure.

Mel, junior member of the McKinley fighting family, proved his ability in the recent Cleveland Golden Gloves when he drove through to the novice bantamweight championship.

Perhaps Ernie is the best scrapper of the two brothers, but his record is no more impressive than Mel's. Ernie had the misfortune of being the victim of a burlesque decision in the Golden Gloves. He might have advanced as high as his younger brother in the open division had this not occurred.

Other crack punchers to see service on the Friendly House card are Al Burton of Fremont, a middleweight; Frank Dolce of Crestline, one of the toughest 112-pounders ever seen in a Mansfield ring; Paul Mollenkopf of Bucyrus, a veteran in amateur circles; Ed Barciz, also of Bucyrus, a brother of Professional Steve Barciz, and Mansfield's own Paul Carbetta, N.C.O. flyweight titleholder, and Jack Swartz, one of Ross Murphy's football players.

This department recommends the show to fans who like to see a lot of action in their fights.

Stover Tosses Hat Into Baseball Scene.

DEWEY STOVER, who is employed temporarily in Philadelphia, has tossed his cap into the Mansfield baseball ring, but Norman Cohen, owner of the home town franchise, does not expect to make a selection immediately Anyway, according to Cohen, this is a matter which must be discussed with the Cleveland affiliation. . . In the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Cobby Hartnett manager of the Cubs, selects his all-time all-star major league team. He lists Gus Mancuso as his catcher, with Bill Terry, Frankie Frisch, Frank Crosetti and Pie Traynor as infielders Ducky Medwick, Chick Hafey and Ross, once a star of McGraw's Giants, are his gardeners, with Dizzy Dean, Carl Hubbell and Van Mungo as his pitching choices. . .

JOE LOUIS says he landed the hardest punch of his career on Art Sykes, one of his first half dozen opponents. . . King Tut, topnotch middleweight of 10 years ago, is trying a comeback in Minneapolis He's fighting preliminaries on neighborhood shows there . . . Golf promoters caused a mild feud between Sam Snead and Jimmy Thomson. To let the fans compare their driving ability they were invariably paired together Each resented it as Snead plays very rapidly while Thomson is a laggard. Neither would try adapting his game to the other's and a very frigid atmosphere prevailed. Now they're paired together . . Win By 29-21 Count

Tommy Scott Tallies 12 Points to Lead Mansfield to Eighth Triumph of Season.

By OSCAR RUHL

TODAY'S Mansfield high school basketball record shows eight victories in 13 games.

This is the best record the Coach Russ Murphy's hoopsters have boasted since the opening of the season, and it was necessary for the Tygers to stage a rally to register their eighth triumph.

Before one of the smallest crowds to witness the Tygers in action on the home court this season, Mansfield's plank pounders turned back the challenge of a scrappy Willard quintet, 29 to 21, last night to mark up their fourth straight victory, their longest winning streak of the campaign.

Make It Interesting.

Sporting a record of four victories in 12 games, Willard was not expected to endanger the Tygers' win chances seriously last night, but the Crimson Flashes made it interesting for the home town athletes.

It was necessary for the Tygers to rally late in the third period to gain a comfortable advantage.

Mansfield's play last night was again erratic. They did not hit the bucket with their accustomed regularity and their passing was sloppy from start to finish.

The Tygers held the lead all the way until midway of the third quarter when the visitors opened a long range bombardment, which tied the score 17-all.

Don Rose's free throw gave the Tygers an 18 to 17 edge, but the result was in doubt until Jack Dugger hit the basket twice on rebounds to give them a 22 to 17 edge going into the fourth period.

Dugger's goals set off the Mansfield rally that netted the victory. The Tygers added to their margin hurriedly in the fourth frame to cinch the decision.

The Tygers produced their best basketball in the second half, but even then it was not up to the standard they had set in the majority of their other tilts.

Mansfield jumped into a 5 to 2 lead in the first period, and held a 13 to 8 advantage at the intermission. The Tygers did not permit Coach Dave Query's men to score from the field until 11 minutes of the first half had elapsed.

While Mansfield outplayed the invaders, Willard possessed a dangerous threat in its long range shooting, which was particularly effective in the third quarter.

Tommy Scott turned in the best performance of any of the Tygers last night. He not only led the Mansfielders in scoring with a dozen points, but distinguished himself in other departments.

Vern Hurst was high score man for the Crimson Flashes with seven points.

Win Preliminaries.

In the preliminary games, Mansfield's No 1 reserve team turned in its best performance of the season to wallop the Willard seconds, 43 to 10, and the No. 2 squad edged the St. John Evangelical church quintet, 23 to 22.

Bob Beer, center for the No. 1 team, put on a one-man scoring show, tallying 18 points. The junior Tygers, who held a 26 to 4 lead at the half, limited the visiting reserve to two field goals.

The No 2 reserve staved off a belated rally to whip the church team after holding an 18 to 12 edge going into the fourth period

Conn Makes It Two Straight Over Apostoli

18,988 See Pittsburgher Annex Decision.

By DREW MIDDLETON

NEW YORK—(AP)—The battle of the year? You can have the taking of Barcelona. We'll choose the taking of Fred Apostoli in 15 bloody, bitter rounds by William Conn, the fight that had everything.

There was cruel and vicious hitting. There was fancy footwork and fancier headwork. There were moments when they stood and let go with all they had as the crowd came roaring to its feet and there were moments when the snarling curses of the fighters rose above the thud of leather on skin.

Conn Badly Marked.

Finally there was the supreme jest of the boxing gods. Conn, the winner, lay flat on his rubbing table in his dressing room. His eyes were swollen, almost closed. There was a big cut under his right eye, a smaller one under his left. He looked utterly spent. And down the hall Apostoli was stepping into his shower, unmarked and smiling wryly as his manager, Larry White bellowed, "It's an outrage, we won that fight."

Few in the crowd of 18,988 fans at Madison Square Garden last night thought so, though it had been close all the way. The fans like Conn and they probably will see a lot of him. Mike Jacobs has large plans for the Pittsburgh Irishman and probably will take the first step toward settling the scrambled light-heavyweight situation by throwing him in with Melio Bettina, the champion in this state. Last night he weighed in at 167 pounds, seven pounds over the limit for the middleweight division which Apostoli rules here and in California and six pounds above Freddy's weight.

Conn had a flickering left hook that jarred Fred off balance. He had a fast right cross that shook Apostoli and buckled his knees. He had eight rounds on our card with six for Apostoli and one even.

Grows Stronger.

When the tenth round came, Conn, who was tired at the end of the ten-rounder he won from Apostoli in December, still was in there firing with both hands. He was growing stronger, and getting smarter.

College Fencers Defeat Mansfield

The Kenyon college club defeated the Mansfield fencing squad, 10 to 7, in a dual match in the college gymnasium at Gambier Friday. The Lords took the foil bouts, 7 to 2. Mansfield was superior in the epee matches, 3 to 1, and the two teams tied 2-all in the sabres.

Holt was outstanding for Kenyon with three victories in as many foil bouts. Bloomfield led Mansfield with two foil victories in addition to taking an epee and sabre bout. Seton of Mansfield won two sabres and an epee bout. Russell Von Wieder of Mansfield is coach of both clubs.

BARONS FACE EAGLES

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Tied with the Hershey Bears for leadership of the western division of the International-American Hockey league, the Cleveland Barons tonight will make a bid for undisputed first place in an encounter with the New Haven Eagles at Cleveland arena.

Hi-Speeds, Elks Add Players

Herrick's Team Signs Berens For Monday.

TWO City Class A league quintets which have been unable to win championship honors in either the opening or second round title races of the league are out rounding up classy talent they hope will provide the spark to make them title threats in the third and final round which gets underway at Senior high Monday night.

The clubs are the Elks Lodge and Earl Herrick's Hi-Speeds, and although they looked impressive in the opening games of the season, bogged down in the thick of the title chases.

Add Two Players.

Manager Jerry King's Lodgemen had their setback early in the season when they lost the services of Adam Brandt and Bob Charles. They added Orville Kibler and Noel Morgan, and Manday evening when they tackle the Westinghouse Electrics in the final contest on the program two other players will make their debut. The session will open with a tussle between the defending championship Yuncker Sports and the Hi-Speeds.

The new members who will wear the Elks livery for the first time are Gervis Brady, late of Mt. Union and John McLean, former Ohio university star. Brady, all-Ohio conference center for two years, and all-Ohio center in 1934, will probably hold down a forward berth.

Brady is expected to aid Tom Farrell, the only tall member of the squad in handling the important rebounds. Farrell has been doing a splendid job in keeping his team near the top, but the tough task of controlling all the rebounds has been too strenuous.

While the Elks are adding strength, Herrick has not been idle in attempting to add scoring punch to his team's attack. The Hi- Speeds' pilot has secured the services of "Beanie" Berens, of Ohio university fame.

Replaces Nana.

Berens, former all-Ohio center, will replace George Nana at the pivot post. Nana will be on the sidelines for a couple of weeks due to illness.

With the addition of these outstanding players, the two clubs should provide plenty of trouble for the clubs that have come through with flying colors in the other rounds.

Crestline Wallops Calvert, 28 to 19

CRESTLINE — Coach Merle Hutson's Crestline high basketeers strengthened their lead in the League of Six Nations race here last night by walloping Tiffin Calvert, 29 to 19.

While the Onondagas were adding to their championship ambitions, Phil Ganni, star guard, crashed through with 17 points to increase his lead in the individual scoring chase. Ganni collected his points on seven goals and three free throws.

The Crestline seconds defeated the Brown Bombers, 19 to 9, in the preliminary game. The Bombers are composed of colored players from the school.

Freshman Steals Show From Glenn In Philly

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Glenn Cunningham, the tireless man of the mile, found his latest victory overshadowed today by the world record-breaking performance of a freshman sprinter. The mighty Kansan overtook Chuck Fenske, former Wisconsin star, on the final lap to win by three yards in the "pennac mile" of the Penn A. C. meet last night in 4:15.6.

But it was Norwood (Barney) Ewell, a lanky freshman from Penn State, who gave the crowd of 7,500 its biggest thrill by breaking the listed 23-year-old indoor record for the 50-yard dash with a 5.1 seconds race. The former record of 5.2 seconds was set by J. G. Loomis of St. Louis in 1916.

Ashland Flock Still on Wing

Renew Bid For Top Honors With 48-39 Victory.

The Eagles of Ashland still are definitely on the wing in the Ohio basketball conference.

They renewed their bid for top honors, currently held by Wooster, in a rousing battle with Heidelberg's Student Princes last night, taking the aggressive Tiffin quintet's measure, 48 to 39.

The Princes trailed by only two points near the end of the game, but Richcreek, a guard, bagged three field goals to pace an Ashland rally. The Eagles were ahead again at the half, 26 to 22. The victory was Ashland's sixth in eight conference tilts.

ASHLAND—Two favorites, Sullivan and Nova, have been seeded for competition in the annual Ashland county high school basketball tournament.

In the drawings made here by the members of the Ashland county schoolmasters club, Sullivan was designated as No. 3 in the upper bracket of competition, and will meet Hayesville.

Nova drew No. 4, and will play Perrysville in the first round. Other first round games are Polk vs. Ruggles and Jeromesville vs. Savannah.

At the tournament which begins on the night of Wednesday Feb. 22, all first round games will begin at 6:30 p. m. Semi-finals games will be played Thursday night, and the finals with the championship to be determined will be played on Saturday night.

Two winners in the finals will play for the consolation prize, but the two teams which remain at the end of the tournament as winners will be eligible for the sectional tournament.

Thomson Shoots Mark-Breaking 64

SAN ANTONIO, Tex — (AP) — Blustery weather moved in on the $5,000 Texas open golf tournament today and the field trailing stout Jimmy Thomson was hoping it would chill the hot sticks that rapped out his record-breaking 64, for a three stroke lead.

Five strokes over the unofficial record 59 Harold (Jug) McSpaden shot in practice. Thomson's round broke by one stroke the old competitive record jointly held by Walter Hagen, Wild Bill Mehlhorn and Jim Demaret for the treacherous Brackenridge Park course, with its par 36-35—71 and lightning fast greens.

Three shots behind, at 67, were Byron Nelson, recent winner of the Phoenix open, and Clayton Heafner of Greensboro, N. C., playing his first tournament. McSpaden had a 68.

POST-SESSION CONTESTS RULED OUT BY PRO LOOP

CHICAGO — (AP) — The barnstorming days of big leaguers in professional football are over. The National league, in annual session here now, yesterday sanctioned one post-season game for pro football. For the next five years it will be a contest between the current league champion and a collection of pro all-stars, picked in a newspaper poll, in Los Angeles.

Ken Strong, immortal of New York university football and former New York Giants star, is back in the good graces of the pro game. He was reinstated yesterday, four years after he repudiated a contract with the Giants to join another pro circuit.

BELLEVUE RETAINS TITLE

SHELBY — The Whippets of Shelby high school registered their second victory of the N.C.O. conference season on the home planks last night when they whipped the Bucyrus Redmen, 32 to 26.

The victory enabled the Whippets to crawl out of the basement tie with Galion, which bowed to Marion last night, and it was also the first for Arlo Willett as head coach.

The outcome of the tussle was in doubt until the final period when the Whippets staged a rally to turn back the Redmen. Shelby trailed 24 to 23 going into the final period, and permitted the visitors only two points in the last quarter to triumph.

Shelby, led by Bob Fireoved's 10 points, held a 14 to 12 advantage at the half. Bucyrus edged Shelby's Reserves, 24 to 22, in the preliminary game.

MT. VERNON — The Yellow Jackets of Mt. Vernon high strengthened their North Central Ohio conference championship hopes last night and at the same time handed Ashland high's title ambitions a serious blow by topping the A's, 41 to 32, in a conference tilt here before a gathering of 1,000, the largest crowd to witness a game here this season.

The victory enabled the Jackets to remain in a tie with Marion for first place, a game ahead of Ashland. The three clubs had shared the lead before last night's games.

Mt. Vernon and Ashland battled through a 7-all tie in the opening frame, but the Jackets went on a scoring spurt in the second to take a lead they never relinquished.

The Jackets led, 23 to 15, at the half, 31 to 24, going into the last period. Noble Snow, forward, set the individual pace with 17 points. Incidentally, he converted all his foul shots. Barr led Ashland with 14 points.

The Ashland Jay Vees smothered Mt. Vernon, 37 to 10, in the prelim.

MARION — The Presidents of Marion Harding retained a share of first place in the North Central Ohio conference today following their 49 to 32 triumph over the Galion Orangemen here last night.

Marion's victory, coupled with Mt. Vernon's defeat of Ashland, left the Presidents and Yellow Jackets resting on the top rung of the league ladder. Ashland had shared first place with the two clubs.

With Fred Dunlap setting the pace with 10 points, Harding jumped into an early lead that was never seriously threatened as it registered its sixth circuit win. Maidens topped Galion with 11 points.

Lucas Reduces Madison's Lead

Scores 36 to 34 Victory Over Rams to Tighten County League Race.

MADISON'S Rams were no nearer the Richland County league championship today than they were last night before they met the dangerous Lucas high quintet on the Madison planks.

Coach Al Fendrick's proteges, smarting from their first league defeat at Lexington last week, had an opportunity of cinching at least a share of the crown by winning last night, but limped off the floor on the short end of a 36 to 34 score.

Play Bellville Tonight.

Although defeated, the Rams still held a game and a half lead over Butler and Lucas, the latter taking a share of second place by stopping Madison. The Rams can assure themselves of at least a share of the title by registering a victory over the Bluejays at Bellville tonight.

Butler and Lucas will also return to action tonight in league encountrs. The Bulldogs journey to Ontario to face the Warriors, while Lucas invades Lexington to tackle the Minutemen. Lucas and Butler must win to retain a chance of tieing for the championship.

Coach Alfred Axe's high-scoring outfit came in with a thrilling last period rally to topple the favored Madison club. Lucas went into the final frame trailing by 28 to 24, but Bob Crawford, who collected 16 points for the evening, suddenly broke loose with a scoring spurt to lead his team to victory.

The Fendrick-coached outfit limited the invaders to a single field goal in the opening frame to take an 8 to 2 lead, and although Lucas outscored the Rams in the second stanza, they still held a 17 to 13 lead at the intermission. Both quints tallied 11 points in the third to enable the Rams to hold onto their four point lead as the clubs resumed play in the fourth period.

Crawford dumped in baskets from all angles to lead Lucas. All of Crawford's points were tallied from the field. Tom Greulich trailed his running mate in the scoring column with nine points.

Kopcial Leads Rams.

Bill Kopcial set the Madison tempo with eight points, with Doug DeNero and Bill Wilkins trailing with seven apiece. The contest marked the first time this season that Kopcial has scored more than two goals.

The Madison seconds walloped Lucas, 27 to 7, in the preliminary tussle.

Bowlers Take Final Crack At $25 Prize

Some bowler in Mansfield has a chance to pick up $25 in "pin" money this week-end at the Meder Recreation alleys. Nine others can also add to their bankroll.

All that is necessary for anyone to fatten his pocketbook is to take a crack at the uprights in The News-Journal Individual Sweepstakes.

The tournament comes to a close this week-end, and while the present leader, Ralph Shaffer, has a good-sized lead, it is not impossible to dethrone him. And a couple of hundred bowlers are expected to try it this week-end.

Four games are rolled across eight alleys, and the score of each contestant is determined by the number of pins he rolls over his season average.

Bowling, which will continue throughout today, will be resumed at 2 p. m. Sunday, with shifts scheduled every hour and a half.

The women's division in the tournament was concluded last Sunday with Evelyn Jocha being crowned champion. She bowled 200 pins over her average.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Last night's basketball game between Columbus North and Columbus South high schools will go into the record books as a 37 to 37 tie, the rival coaches said today. The score remained knotted after two overtime periods of play and the coaches decided against further play.

Mephisto's 'Pile-Driver' Beats Kimon Kuda; Jap Wrestler Unable to Return For Last Fall

THE Great Mephisto's celebrated "pile-driver" is the most destructive weapon in wrestling circles.

This was the opinion of Mansfield followers of the mat sport last night after the world's light-heavyweight champion had disposed of another challenger with his deadly specialty.

The largest crowd of the winter season saw Mephisto take Kimon Kuda of Japan into camp in the title match at the Armory.

And for Mephisto, the victory was sweet revenge. Kuda won over the new champion in their last meeting several months ago.

The titular match ended in the second fall when the Jap was unable to return. Kuda fell victim of Mephisto's "pile-driver" after injuring his back in a fall from the ring and he was unable to return for the third and decding fall.

Kuda won the first fall with an arm strangle in 19:02 minutes, and it was the second fall that Mephisto has dropped in the Mansfield ring this season.

The match was a humdinger from start to finish. Not rough or brutal, but clever. Both grapplers broke hold after hold to offer the spectators the most interesting bit of wrestling witnessed on the Mansfield mat in weeks.

Otis Clingman, veteran Texan, featured a hammerlock to defeat Bill Brooks, New York lightheavyweight, in the semi-final match. The former took the first fall in 14½ minutes with a hammerlock, dropped the second in 9½ minutes and then finished the match with the same hold in 4½ minutes.

Pasha Beiram Bey, an importation from Turkey, employed tactics which did not meet with the approval of Referee Clarence Miller in the opening match with Lon Chaney of Chicago, and he was disqualified after 15 minutes.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"I'm getting the next train back to New York to work," Jerry said, his hand on the doorknob. "Good, hard work." He looked at Kurt again. "You don't have to believe me. But when I clear out and she puts her arms around you think how many other guys she's had her arms around, telling them the same things she's telling you. So long."

The door closed quietly after him.

Kurt stood very quietly, looking at her.

After a while she cried out, "Don't stand there staring at me! Go on and say it!"

"Look at me, Gina." And when she was looking at him guiltily, he said, "When you told me it was all over between us last year because you loved Russell Emory, I took it hard. It knocked the props from under me. But when I thought about it, I thought any woman had a right to change her mind. The feeling I had then was one of loss. I loved you and I lost you—to another man. Love is a game and I didn't win. Jerry was telling the truth, Gina. If he were jealous and this had been his way of freeing you from me so he could have you, I might not believe him. But he doesn't want you. I said the feeling I had last year was one of loss. Now . . . . now the feeling I have is one of—disgust."

He had felt the repulsion growing as Jerry had spoken, realizing that it was one thing to be hurt by a woman who preferred another man to you but quite another thing to be used for mercenary purposes. And it was worse this second time because the first time she had cared, he knew. But this second time everything she had said was a lie, and, actress that she was, she had been playing a part. . . . .

He could look at her now without being in the least disturbed by her loveliness. A beautiful, desirable woman—yes. He thought "I never looked beneath the surface. Now when I do and see what she is really like inside, how she schemes and thinks only of herself, I don't feel anything but disgust for her and for myself."

"Dont' look at me like that, Kurt! I can't bear it. Yes, it's true. Everything he said was true."

His voice was cool, his jaw line sharp, his eyes fiercely intent.

"You feel flattered about checking up a second victory against me, don't you, Gina?" His laughter was sudden and short and bitter. "But why am I blaming you? What are we sad about? We should be laughing our heads off—at me!"

"My heart isn't as black as you think it is," Gina said. "A desperate woman will do anything." She picked up her gloves. Her voice was tired and hoarse. No use to fight. No use to plead. His eyes had no warmth in them for her . . . "Like Jerry, I'm going back to work, too. To good, hard work. Perhaps new screen tests will be better."

Kurt said, "Wait a minute. This has been a play, Gina. It's been running for two years. We're going to make the end of it as neat as we can—under the circumstances."

Gina shrugged. "What possibly could we do to make it have a happy ending? No, I'm going. Kurt. It—it does something to a woman to see a man's love die suddenly in his eyes. Two years ago when I first met you, I loved you. I was happy for a time. But there's only one thing I ever really wanted, only one thing I could ever be faithful to. My work. I want to be on the top in that. Don't you think I've realized that you're too good for me? I tell you my heart isn't as black or as hard as you think it is."

Again he said, "Wait a minute." And he went to the desk, took his check-book, and wrote a check. Suddenly he wanted to laugh. A year ago he'd have written a check for everything he had—to have Gina. Now he was writing a check to get rid of her!

With it in his hand, he crossed the room to her and held it out to her.

"This will make our parting more amiable, I think," he said. "I want you to have it." She took it eagerly. "I'm giving you what you wanted from me. And you are giving me today what I want from you, Gina. Freedom from loving you. I don't feel anything for you at all I'm not kidding myself this time. This check will take you to Hollywood and set you up in fine style. We're even. I'll go to see your first picture and I hope you're great in it."

"You're bitter to the core, Kurt."

"Not at you. At myself. I'd like to kick myself around." He held out his hand and hers slipped into his. "Good-bye and good luck, Gina."

"You're being very generous and decent. You . . . ."

"Forget it." He smiled grimly. "Now run along and let me kick myself. And don't laugh on your way out because I'll be doing enough laughing for both of us—laughing at myself!"

She came out of the apartment building into the deepening twilight and walked briskly, her bag tightly clutched, her ivory face tinted with pleasure.

On the corner she stopped and thought, "I didn't tell him that I had told Alix we were married. Perhaps I should go back and tell him." But she couldn't face him again; and she was fearful of another scene.

She wanted to wave her arms with joy. She had what she wanted and she was free! The check would buy a new wardrobe, pay her bills, buy a ticket to Hollywood and, as Kurt had said, set her up in fine style. She would work. She would get to the top. And perhaps some day she would have the opportunity to say to Jerry Fayne, "You thought you had ruined me but you did me a favor when you told Kurt. You set him free to go back to a girl who is mad about him, his kind of girl, the girl his imagination tried to make me. Now I'm a great success, Jerry." Perhaps out of gratitude she could do something for Jerry some day. . . .

She hailed a cab, gave the chauffeur the name of her hotel, and told him to hurry. She thought of saying to him gaily: "Do you know who I am? I'm Gina Rowland, the actress. That probably doesn't mean anything to you now but soon you'll be seeing my name glittering in every city and town in the land. You'll see my face in magazines and on bill-boards. You'll read that I'm going to marry an actor. But don't believe it. Because I'm not going to marry anybody. I'm not a marrying woman. I'm going to live for myself and work for myself. For myself! That's what I want! Oh, yes, that's what I want . . . I . . . I . . .

In Kurt's apartment Jaffers timidly appeared, saw his master sitting in a deep chair with a pipe between his teeth. The room was quite dark now. Jaffers turned on a lamp.

Kurt said, taking a deep breath, "The fireworks are over, Jaffers." He smiled at the elderly man. "Of course you heard. I don't blame you for listening. It was a good show. And I don't blame them." He pointed to himself. "I'm the sap. I've been sitting here thinking all about it. Do you know what I've got? Two months' vacation! And do you know what I'm going to do with it? Take a cruise and make merry?" He shook his head. "No. I'm going to get my car from the shop tomorrow morning and take a long jaunt alone. Because I've discovered I don't know myself very well and it's time I did."

"I'm sorry it turned out this way, sir."

Kurt shook his dark head. 'I'm not. For two years I've been infatuated with a woman's beauty. And today I looked at that same beautiful woman with disgust." He wasn't looking at his servant now. He was looking soberly out the window. "I was a sap where Gina is concerned. But a bigger one where Alix is concerned. You can pack my things now, Jaffers. I'll be leaving quite early in the morning. You have a two-months vacation coming to you, too."

"May I ask, sir . . ."

Kurt said, "I'm going to live with the biggest fool in the world. With myself. I don't know where I'm going. I'm just going to drive until I see a place I like and then stay there. That's all."

HI-SPEED GAS
2 WAYS TO DO IT
There's two proven methods, to increase the efficiency of your car for winter driving and they are:
HI-SPEED DECARBONIZING
This is cleaning out your motor. We lubricate the valves, check the spark plugs and by our decarbonizing process increase compression from 20 % to 35%. This only costs 50c and 30 minutes time.
HI-SPEED MOTO-SWAY
This is lubricating your car under actual road conditions. It allows good, clean grease to force its way into tight fittings, where ordinary lubricating methods would never penetrate. It gets rid of squeaks and increases the life of your car.

CITY AWARDS 15 CONTRACTS FOR MATERIAL

Divides Up Orders Among Six Identical Bidders; Two Contracts Held Up.

Fifteen contracts for materials and supplies to be used in three city departments had been awarded today, according to Earl A. Nist, service-safety director. Only two of the entire number of contracts were held up, but these awards will be made within a few days.

Nist said that the contracts on masons' sand and cement were held up for a few days, as six identical bids, had been submitted and further investigation would be necessary.

Of the contracts awarded, six Mansfield concerns offered identical bids on all materials, and the city accepted a bid on one artcile from each of them. These included cement from Voegele Brothers, sewer pipe from Rusk Brothers, pre-mix concrete and calcium chloride from Kallmerten and Baer, stone from M. L. Branyan, granulated slag from Simon Small and Son, and three cars of coal for the sewage disposal plant from Funk Coal company. All but the last contract are for material to be used in the street department, Nist said.

Gets Two Contracts.

The contract for road oil and asphalt for the street department went to the Mansfield Asphalt and Paving company, the only bidder. Other contracts let for the street department were for crushed slag which went to R. O. Darling and Sons; bank run and crushed gravel, awarded to H. W. Fleck, all on low bids, and traffic paint which was awarded the Automotive Supply company. Nist said this was not the lowest bid, but that a lower bid from Sherwin and Williams had not been made according to specifications.

The Model Brick and Tile company of Wooster was given the contract for paving brick as the company submitted the lowest bid.

Nine hundred feet of new fire hose will be purchased from the Fabric Fire House company, Columbus, low bidders.

One item among the city supplies was that for 600 new garbage cans, which the water and garbage department has needed for some time. The bid submitted by the Martin Hardware company was slightly higher than that of the Taylor company, but the contract was awarded on delivery. Taylors specified that they could not deliver the cans for 60 days, whereas the city must have them within a few days and Martin's agreed to get them.

Lowest bidder on the 530 cubic yards of filter sand for use at the Sewage disposal plant was the Perrysville Washed Sand and Gravel company, which was given the contract.

which is the continuation of Christ in the world."

Rev. Flynn said that the reason Catholics honor the pope so highly is "because he is the vicar of Christ on earth—his personal representative."

Referring to the stricken pontiff and his accomplishments during his 17-year reign in the Vatican Rev. Flynn said the Catholics the world over "were proud to have Pius XI as the successor to St. Peter."

Wednesday, the day of the pope's funeral, a solemn mass for the repose of his soul, will be said in St. Peter's church with the Rt. Rev. Msgr. R. C. Goebel, pastor, as the celebrant.

Monsignor Goebel's sermon at tomorrow's masses as well as those of his assistants, will deal with the life of the pope and the continuation of the papacy since the time of St. Peter.

LIST ADVANCES IN PRE-HOLIDAY STOCK SESSION

Optimistic View of Business Prospects Believed Reason For Spurt.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market got off dead-center today and, with a little more activity than in the preceding sluggish session, posted gains of fractions to a point or so for favorites.

Short covering by traders who wished to be out of the market over the lengthy week-end—the exchange will be closed Monday for Lincoln's birthday commemoration—was given part of the credit for the better performance of the list. Transfers for the 2 hours approximated 300,000 shares.

A somewhat more optimistic view of business prospects, brokers said, inspired some of the buying in steels, motors, aircrafts and specialties.

That the market still is extremely "thin" was deduced from a run-up of more than 3 points in Westinghouse on a meager turnover. Wide quotations on so-called "quality" issues was a feature of the proceedings.

Prominent stocks on the recovery were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, J. C. Penney, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Philip Morris and U. S. Gypsum.

Securities at Amsterdam, the only important overseas market open, pointed higher. Bonds were selectively improved and commodities quiet.

LIQUOR, TRAFFIC MIX--3 INJURED

2 Accidents Result In 2 Fines For Intoxicated Driving; 5 'Drunks' Also In Court.

ported. Keller, bleeding profusely, was being held up by King, when police arrived. Both men were taken to the hospital, but King was released later. Patrolman Eugene Hartnett signed the affidavit against King.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch fined King $75 and costs, suspended his driving license for one year and ordered him to pay the damage to Gladden.

Harold Shanks and Edward Mosier, both of Windsor, appeared in court this morning, Shanks pleading guilty to a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, and Mosier to an intoxication charge. The latter was fined $5 and costs, and the sentence on Shanks was deferred until the court could make an investigation of the damages in the case.

Gerald Bowman, R. F. D. 4, signed the affidavits against both. He said Shanks, driving a truck, had passed a line of cars at the intersection of East Fourth and Ashland road, and had crashed into his auto as it made a left hand turn onto East Fourth. Witnesses testified Shanks jumped from the truck after the crash and started to run north on Ashland road. Bowman and Russell Minard pursued him and caught him at the rear of the Estes Ice company.

Shanks suffered a cut over the right eye which was dressed at police station.

Five men charged with intoxication pleaded guilty and were fined $5 and costs each. An assault and battery charge filed against Frank Bogner by Peter Sams over an altercation on South Walnut street, resulted in a fine of $10 and costs and 30 days in jail when Bogner pleaded guilty. The jail sentence was suspended on condition of good behavior.

SEEK TO AVERT MILK PRICE WAR

Producers Name Committees To Attempt To Stabilize Price Schedules.

In a move to avert a milk price war in Mansfield, the Richland County Milk Producers association last night named two committees to request wholesale and retail distributors to refrain from price-cutting.

Clarence Mowry, president of the milk producers, said a number of distributors in the city had been selling milk for as low as eight cents a quart in violation of an agreement to maintain an 11-cent retail and 9-cent wholesale price schedule.

"We believe prices lower than our established rate schedule will not permit the producer to maintain the necessary sanitation methods and make a fair profit on his product," Mowry said.

G. H. Culler, Lucas; A. L. Lockhart, Lexington, and Dale Dohner, Mansfield, were named on a policing committee last night at a meeting at the courthouse.

Dohner, Lockhart and Mowry were chosen to contact distributors in the Mansfield area in an attempt to settle the price dispute.

Approximately 40 independent producers and pasteurizing distributers attended the session.

U. S. Investigator Resigns In Probe of Judge Manton

NOONAN TERMS FIRM'S STOCK LISTING 'TRICK'

Denies Knowledge Of 3,000 Shares In Corporation Jurist Controls.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Acting United States Attorney Gregory F. Noonan withdrew today from the investigation of the conduct of Martin T. Manton, resigned Federal Circuit judge, coincident with the disclosure that 3,000 shares of stock in one of Manton's corporations had once been listed in his name.

Manton resigned as senior judge of the United States circuit court of appeals two weeks ago after District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, conducting a state tax investigation, had charged that Manton, corporations he controlled or persons in his employ had received loans from persons or corporations acting for litigants in Manton's court.

Attorney General Frank Murphy in Washington had ordered a thorough investigation of Manton's conduct. Noonan was in charge of it. His investigators learned last night from records of the Alamac-Esplanade corporation surrendered by Manton to a Federal grand jury that Noonan's name had been listed as a stockholder.

Wants No 'Criticism.'

Noonan notified Murphy that he was withdrawing voluntarily from the investigation "so that there can be no possible grounds for criticism."

He said his name had been listed as a stock owner without his knowledge and that it had been a "dastardly trick."

Murphy named John Cahill as special assistant attorney general to continue the investigation "with all the necessary vigor and dispatch."

The Alamac-Esplanade records listed Noonan as owner of 2,000 shares of common and 1,000 shares of preferred stock.

Noonan said he had been "named as the nominee to hold the stock for the now defunct Chelsea Bank and Trust company, without my knowledge or consent, some 14 years ago when I was working as a clerk in the law office of the bank's attorney.

The law office, he said, was Hardy and Hardy. A partner was Lamar Hardy, Noonan's predecessor, who resigned the United States attorneyship last year.

Noonan said that "somebody probably entered my name as the owner of the stock." He said he had not paid anything for the stock; could not recall having received any dividends from it, and could not recall having been asked to sign over the stock two years ago to Rough and Company during a reorganization of the bank.

'Just Impossible,' Joan Says In Suit Against Franchot

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — A "brief and easy" divorce was sought in Hollywood today by Joan Crawford from Franchot Tone.

The famous film actress filed suit against Tone, now in New York, as the climax to a separation of several months. She charged her equally famous husband with being sullen.

It was the old, old Hollywood story—the insurmountable difficulties of combining a motion picture career with domestic happiness.

"It was just impossible," Miss Crawford told close friends. "I don't want to do anything to hurt Franchot, and I told my lawyer to make things as brief and easy as possible."

The actress refused to discuss her purported romance with Charles Martin, film scenario writer, but rumor was strong that she would wed Martin when she obtained her final decree from Tone.

This is the second marriage of the star to go on the rocks.

Before her marriage to Tone, Miss Crawford was formerly the wife of Douglas Fairbanks, jr. She was divorced from Fairbanks in May, 1933 on the grounds that Fairbanks was jealous and suspicious.

Sees 10 Per Cent Cut In Government Cost

SENATOR SAYS SAVINGS WILL SLASH DEFICIT

Finance Chairman Declares $18,000,000 Lopped Off Previous Budget.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Partial solution of the administration problem of funding state deficits without imposition of new taxes will be realized through an approximate $18,000,000 slash in the biennium budget, Sen. Fred L. Adams (R., Bowling Green) revealed today.

Adams, who is chairman of the senate finance committee, estimated that the $180,000,000 program for 1937-38 under the Davey regime would be reduced by at least 10 per cent.

He pointed to the 13 per cent reduction in the partial appropriations bills which sliced the six-months departmental cost from $46,000,000 to $43,000,000.

Get More Money.

Adams admitted that certain state departments which were neglected throughout the Davey administration because "they were not of political significance" would be provided with enough money to operate efficiently.

"But," Adams said, "there are many other departments which have had too much operating money and they are the departments where the big savings will be made."

The Bowling Green senator said that the state board of control is half way through its hearings of state departments' budget requests and will conduct the balance of the hearings this month.

Finance Director William S. Evatt has ordered all divisions to present their budget programs quickly in order that the biennium bill may be handed to the legislature by March 1.

Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Federation of Labor, was well appeased by amendments to the job insurance ripper bill which passed the senate this week.

A bitter foe of the measure in its original form, Donnelly, veteran legislative representative of labor, said after the bill had been steam-rollered through by the Republican majority:

"The only fault I have to find is that allowing employers the right to appeal from benefit decisions will lengthen the period for benefit payments by 10 days. It would be that long before an appeal could be prepared and during that time workers would have to receive benefits."

Up and Down THE STREET

And was Walter Ziegler, police chief of the Westinghouse staff of coppers, embarrassed last night when his wrist watch was lifted right off his arm in a brightly lighted room with dozens of persons looking on? Blackstone, the magician, who is appearing at the Ohio, stopped in at the American Legion club last night after the show and was giving some impromptu entertainment. Ziegler was asked to participate in a card trick and while doing so kept his eyes constantly on the magician's hands. But, despite his alertness, a few minutes later Blackstone held up the officer's wrist watch.

It wasn't that Mayor Claude M. Hunter wanted to get tough with Dan Cupid, but just that he had to obey a city ordinance, which says that a mayor must charge a fee of $3 for marrying a couple. A couple appeared before His Honor this morning. He married them, but when it came to paying the required fee, they were short a dollar. It was too late to un-marry them so the mayor just held up their marriage certificate. Now the couple can't prove they are married until they dig up another dollar.

Miss Mae Longsdorf, teacher in the Bowman school, was telling her pupils about the great men who were born in February. "Who can tell me who the two great men were whose birthdays we observe this month?" she asked. An enthusiastic first grader piped up: "I can—he's Mr. Harmony." The small boy, perhaps diplomatically referred to G. W. Harmony, principal of Bowman school.

The soberest of drivers probably have often wondered what would happen if their car should swerve as they drive over the open grease and oil pits at the service stations. One Mansfielder—but he was far from sober—found out last night when he drove his auto into, and not over, the oil pit at a filling station between Elm and East Fifth. It took considerable work to get the car out of its "grave" after which it was towed to a service station for repairs.

Jay Winters knocked on wood before the Mansfield-Willard basketball game at the high school last night. The popular referee, who operates a haberdashery in Bucyrus, was reminded before the tip-off last night by a friend that it was just about a year ago that his store was badly damaged by fire while he was officiating at a game. Then he recalled that it was the Mansfield-Willard game of last year which he handled on the night of the disaster. That's why he knocked on wood. (There was no fire last night, though.)

STORE ROBBED

Jewelry Shop Window Broken; Loot Totals $97.50.

For the second time in two weeks a Mansfield jewelry store was burglarized last night. The window of the Brenner Jewelry store, 8 West Third street, was broken either last night or early this morning and $97.50 worth of merchandise stolen.

On Jan. 31, the Them Jewelry store was robbed of two watches by burglars who threw a stone through the window.

Officer Don Mitchell discovered the broken window at the Brenner store at 4 a. m. today. Police Chief Meade K. Bates said that a glass cutter evidently had been used. A round, clean-cut hole had been made in the glass and there was no missil in sight, he said.

The burglar reached in through the opening and took two electric razors, a wrist watch, a gold wrist band and a tray of costume rings valued at $50.

State Asks Property Owners Near Proposed 30-N Job to File Damage Claims.

The state highway department will renew its efforts to clear a right-of-way for a proposed $250,000 crossing elimination project at the Pennsylvania tracks on route 30N just east of Crestline, highway officials announced today.

State Highway Director Robert S. Beightler notified property owners in the vicinity of the proposed improvement to file damage claims with the department by March 8, asserting that work on the project will be started as soon as a right-of-way is opened.

Failure of the highway department to obtain easements on necessary land at the grade crossing has repeatedly delayed work on the project which will be financed jointly by the state and federal governments.

V. T. Grimes, assistant division highway engineer, said specifications call for an overhead crossing to eliminate a danger point on route 30 east of the Richland-Crawford county line.

"The state cannot request bids on the project until disputes over a right-of-way have been settled, and if agreements are not reached with property owners, the highway department will ask the county court to determine the value of the land," Grimes said.

Two bridge repair projects totaling about $4,000 had been launched in the county today, Grimes said. They include resurfacing of bridges on route 545 in Troy township and route 546 in Perry township.

The Brookville Bridge company, Brookville, O., has the contract for repairing the structures.

BLACKSTONE LEAVES AUDIENCES GASPING AS HE UNCORKS 'MAGIC'

Harry Blackstone, dean of American magic-makers and the last of the famous trio which included Thurston and Houdini, had Mansfield audiences "going around in circles" yesterday and last night at the Ohio theater where he performed such feats that most of the spectators left the theater convinced that they had been "seeing things."

The white-haired Irishman who began his study of magic when as a boy he served as one of the "spirits" for a famous spiritualist in Chicago, and whose "tricks" carefully worked out over a period of years, have netted him thousands of acres of good substantial American land—including 11,000 acres in Michigan—mystified and thrilled his audiences yesterday as nonchalantly as though he were entertaining his four-year-old son in the privacy of his own home.

There is no such thing as "magic" to this man who seemingly runs an electric power saw through the body of a young woman in full view of the audience and with no curtains or boxes to hid his work. "It's all a matter of scientific facts," unusual precision and trick gadgets," he insists.

Everywhere he goes, spectators try to work out his tricks—but no one has ever attempted to guess the secret of the handkerchief that turns into a ghost, dancing madly about the stage and even giving a few leaps after it is restored to its owner in the audience.

The most amazing of Blackstone's tricks, which has never been duplicated nor explained and which still remains one of his best even after years of use, is the disappearing bird and bird-cage. He performs it twice at each show, permitting persons from the audience to hold the cage the second time. Whisk! and the bird and cage had melted into thin air right out of their hands. Skeptical individuals in the audience feel Blackstone's sleeves and under his coat—but find no trace of the magical bird.

The Blackstone show concludes a two-day engagement at the Ohio tonight. After tonight's regular show, Blackstone will give a "spook party" in which he duplicates many of the incredible stunts that are performed by fake spiritualists and psychics.

Not That It Matters

New Undertaking Starts To Send Theater's Best Plays, Players to Nation

—By JANE WILLIAMS

THERE is a glimmer of hope for the legitimate theater in smaller cities in the announcement this week of the newly organized Legitimate Theater Corporation of America, with offices in Chicago.

The corporation proposes to do with the best Broadway plays what the NBC Artists bureau does for the concert stage.

Arthur M. Oberfelder, veteran Denver theater man, caught the vision when he realized that the concert stage is having a tremendous boom while the legitimate theater, which has always been more popular, is suffering from anemia outside of a few metropolitan cities. In a wide canvass of his clientele he discovered that nine out of ten men prefer plays to concerts while almost the same ratio is true for women.

The answer, he decided, lay in the fact that a definite and concerted drive is made in cities to sell season membership tickets for the concerts, while the theater attractions get only sketchy publicity about two weeks before a presentation.

NOW it will be possible for towns of 30,000 population and over to secure a season of four Broadway plays with the New York casts, properties and settings, on a season membership basis. The program may include such stars as Katherine Cornell and Helen Hayes in current plays.

The first season—with Cincinnati as the first city to sign up for it—will have "Golden Boy," "On Borrowed Time," "What a Life" and Eva LeGallienne in "Hedda Gabler." The series will cost approximately the same as memberships in the Civic Music association. For instance, the series could be purchased for Mansfield for $5,000. We pay $4,500 for our Civic Music programs.

If Mansfield could support both the concerts and the series of plays—what a lot of running up to Cleveland in bad weather could be saved!

Joseph W. Martin, jr., Massachusetts congressman, who is looked upon as the wit of the house, has a new—and cheerful slogan—for the Republican party. It is "For the Republican Party—Life Begins at '40."

IT'S probably human nature. Very frequently now you hear radio fans say "I don't think Burns and Benny are as funny as they were before they got into the smuggling mix-up."

Of course they are just as funny as ever—it's the fans themselves who have changed. There is a pretty general feeling that these two big shots of the entertainment world showed poor sportsmanship in spending their big American-earned dollars abroad for jewelry and then attempting—as is charged in Benny's case—to bring it into the United States without paying Uncle Sam what they owed him on it for duty.

We might easily forgive them for breaking the law, but doggone it, it's hard to overlook poor sportsmanship!

STATE highway patrolmen of the Mansfield station send word to me—a bit derisively, I fear—that they've missed my publicity the last few columns.

So, so sorrah. But even though I don't write of them I think of them almost daily—every time I see their car parked in a safety zone. And I literally grab each afternoon's paper to see if the traffic drive has hit them.

But it hasn't so far, and since I know that the Mansfield police department wouldn't be unfair enough to give you and you a tag and overlook the same offense by the patrol, I'm forced to the conclusion that the patrolmen are in the same category as the working girl. Heaven protects 'em.

NOTES ON THE CUFF: Associated Press story says that Horatio Alger books still sell 240,000 copies a year. What I'd like to know—are the Elsie Dinsmore books still in circulation? Cried the eyes right out of my head over the first 27 of them away back yonder. . . . Know beforehand that I'm going to run a temperature over "Jesse James"—not from excitement but because of what the movie makers do to history. . . . Visitors recently returning from Germany confirm reports that Hitler neither drinks, smokes nor eats meat. And I always thought they had to throw him raw meat every morning!

Pegler Needs Advice On Blooming Properties of Wistaria - the Sex Flower

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—I wonder if any readers can help me out on this.

It is about a wistaria, which is a sort of vine that has pale-purple flowers, something like lilacs, if all goes well.

Well, at the time we got it this one was supposed to be seven years old—which is the age of consent, as you might say, with wistarias in our part of the country, although in some parts of the south, where all things mature earlier, the age is as low as two and a seven-year-old wistaria is practically an old maid.

The man said it probably would bloom that year and if not, anyway, next and to feed it a diet, which he left at a small extra cost, and keep the earth nice and loose, which was done. Three years passed and without being in any way unpleasant about it we thought well, after all, how about some wistaria blossoms?

About that time a man came along one day who claimed to be an expert on such things, and he took a look and said, "That wistaria is running too much leaf. Does it bloom?"

This opened the subject, and he examined it, felt of it here and there and said it was a great big, healthy wistaria and ought to produce fine, upstanding blossoms, and when had it been bred?

Bred?

Yes, bred.

Did he mean like horses and cows and all such farm stock?

Sure, he meant that. How else did anyone suppose they had little wistarias? Breed them in the fall and they foal, or whatever you would say, in the spring, and, moreover, he had a fine stud wistaria at his nursery and the fee would be $5, guaranteed.

There was no sense being priggish because, after all, it's just nature, and a hush-hush policy about sex may be just as dangerous as the other extreme. He said he had had excellent results all around the neighborhood, gave several names of satisfied customers and high-pressured $5. He came back a few days later and said positively that next spring, we would have wistarias.

Casually and hopefully, the wistaria vine was watched next spring from the time the first leaves sprouted out. We would just pass by nonchalantly and sneak quick peeks, just to see if.

I always said nope, refusing to be misled by wishfulness, and as the summer wore on it turned out that I was right. We had no wistarias, so I called the man last fall, and he kept promising to come back and boasting about that wistaria stallion of his and its pedigrees, which he claims has orchid ancestry.

He talks about plant hormones and deficiency in a way that seems very learned, and now he is around to the point of suggesting that my wistaria first should have a potion of something which he would jab into the roots with a needle. He is blaming my wistaria, insisting that this Casanova of his is irresistible to any normal vine of the opposite sex. And he wants $2 more.

"That scrawny old weed of yours is no Du Barry, you know," he said. "In fact, it is part poison ivy, and if I had to do it over again I wouldn't want to take your business because it is bad for our reputation. We only breed to high-class stock, approved stock, but you seemed so disappointed that I did you a favor. Now it is getting around that we had a failure."

Well, he claims that this stud of his is practically the Man-o-War of wistaria, and I am in no position to argue because I never even knew there were such things in the plant world. I always thought geraniums just had geraniums, hollyhocks had hollyhocks and so forth, and I would appreciate it very much if anyone who knows would inform me whether this man is correct and whether it would be worth while to spend the $2 extra for his treatment.

Cardinal Schuster

Four of the cardinals shown in the accompanying layout will help select the successor to Pope Pius XI when the college of cardinals meets in Vatican City within the next two weeks. Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, will administer Vatican affairs as acting head of the church until a new Pope is chosen. Cardinal Pacelli is well known in the United States through his visit in 1936. He is shown with George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago who sailed for Rome today to take part in the election. Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster, archbishop of Milan, Italy, and Auguste Cardinal Hlond of Poland, are mentioned as a successor to Pope Pius although it is generally believed that the new Pontiff will be an Italian, following centuries-old tradition. St. Peter's cathedral, where the Pope's body will lie in state, is shown in the other photo with the famed St. Peter's square in the foreground.

POPE IN DEATH BRINGS EUROPE NEAR PEACE HE SOUGHT IN LIFE

(By United Press)

LONDON—Pope Pius in death may make an important contribution to the peace of Europe for which he worked so hard in life, reports from European capitals indicated today.

Dispatches from Rome, as well as reports in diplomatic quarters here, were that Italy's campaign against France might be delayed for weeks.

Coincident with these reports a United Press dispatch quoted some diplomatic quarters as believing that Premier Benito Mussolini even before the pope's death was showing increasing eagerness to reach an agreement with France without precipitating a crisis.

Both Great Britain and France were working urgently, if in greatest secrecy, to end the Spanish civil war and at the same time to see that Spain in peace was freed of Italian and German troops.

These and other signs led diplomats to believe that the death of the pope, and the sincere mourning for him in Europe, might give the continent a breathing space during which the threat of international complications could be made more remote.

Italy was the center of the situation for the moment. Dispatches said Italians had stopped talking about France and were talking of the pope's death and the election of his successor. Italian newspapers had dropped their anti-France articles.

Rome dispatches emphasized that Mussolini had not abandoned his French campaign and would seek to exact his claims at the proper time. But it was added that he, noted for his ability to sense a situation, had decided that the moment had not arrived to start his campaign. As the pope's death and the election of a successor will put church news in the most prominent position in Italy for several weeks, it was indicated that any anti-French campaign in the newspapers, designed to stir the Italian people, would have to be started anew.

Rev. Paul Hollingshead, pastor, will speak on the subject, "Lincoln's Democracy."

ATTORNEY TALKS TO YOUTH FORUM

Gongwer to Tell What Youth Can Do to Preserve Democracy.

Atty. Howard Gongwer will address members of the Community Christian Youth Forum at its weekly meeting at 6:30 p. m. Sunday at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Gongwer will speak on "What Can Youth Do Towards Preserving Democracy?" The social period begins at 6:30 p. m. followed at 6:45 by a worship period. The program begins at 7 p. m.

The worship program will be in charge of Robert Meese, devotional committee chairman. Henry Sanford is chairman of the Forum.

UNFALTERING SERVICE

Lincoln's Birthday recalls one of his speeches in which he said "Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it."

We have always recognized our duty to the community and leave nothing undone to furnish complete funeral services at reasonable prices.

'SOUL' IS TOPIC

Lesson-Sermon Will Be Read at Scientist Church Tomorrow.

"Soul" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us; this is the Lord" (Isaiah 25:9).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ . . . . For in him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily . . . . And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power" (Colossians 2:8-10).

CARDINALS GET READY TO NAME 262ND PONTIFF

Body of Pius Rests Today In St. Peter's; Hold Night-Long Vigil Of Prayer.

centuries of the Holy Roman Catholic church.

Cardinal Gennaro Granito Pignatelli di Belmonte, 87-year-old dean of the sacred college of cardinals, presided.

It was announced officially that the cardinals had decided the conclave would open as soon as "all cardinals who have given notification that they are coming to Rome" have arrived.

It was signified that the cardinals would not wait until expiration of the maximum 18-day period after the Pope's death but would expedite matters if all the cardinals arrived before 18 days.

The principal event today of the nine day funeral ceremonies for the late pope was the removal of the body from the Sisten chapel to the Basilica of St. Peter's.

There, starting tomorrow, the people who showed today such sincere mourning for Pope Pius, will file past his body to pay homage.

The pope's body was clad in a white wool robe, with a red hooded cape hanging loosely over the head and shoulders so that the face could be seen plainly. The white gloved hands were clasped over a silver crucifix.

Drape Flags In Black.

Building from medieval palaces to bright modernistic apartment houses flew the Italian flag with a piece of black bunting surmounting it.

As the cardinals held their first meeting, vatican officials denied that any date had been considered for the world conclave on the election of the 262d Pope. Nevertheless, Italian newspapers asserted that the conclave would start during the last days of this month.

Loom As Successors.

Speculation regarding a successor to the pope centered on the names of Cardinals Lavitrano, Archbishop of Palermo; Della Costa, Archbishop of Florence, and Piazza, Patriarch of Venice.

More than is usual, the possibility that a foreign pope might be named this time was discussed in church circles. Here the names of Cardinals Capello, Archbishop of Buenos Aires; Hlond, archbishop of Gnesia and Posnania in Poland, and Cerejeira, archbishop of Lisbon.

Of United States cardinals, Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago was most frequently mentioned.

Two U. S. Cardinals Go to Rome Today.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Two American Cardinals sail today for Italy to participate in the election of a successor to Pope Pius XI, whom 21,000,000 American Catholics mourned with the most solemn rituals of their church.

George Cardinal Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago, speeding here by train from Florida, and Denis Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia, en route by automobile, will board the Italian liner Rex for Naples this afternoon.

The other American Cardinal, William Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, was returning from Nassau, Bahamas, aboard the Cunard White Star Liner Britannic, due here Monday. Passage has been booked for him aboard the Italian liner Saturnia, sailing Wednesday, but since it is a slow Mediterrancan cruise ship it was believed that Cardinal O'Connell might change his sailing to the Aquitania, which leaves Feb. 18 and arrives in Cherbourg, France, Feb. 24.

Twice previously, individual American Cardinals have attended the election of a Pope, but for the first time this country was sending its full delegation. Cardinal O'Connell, whose health has been failing, ended his seclusion at Nassau to board the ship for New York last night.

At 79, he is dean of cardinal priests, one of the three units of the sacred college, and as such is one of the four cardinals serving as the governing board of the church pending the election of a new Pope.

Drive carefully tomorrow—accidents do not "happen," they are caused.

It was Calvin Coolidge who thought to remark: "I never got into trouble from anything I did not say."

Popularity of Charley McCarthy and Dopey, the dwarf, may account for some politicians thinking they know what people want.

Village to Adjoin Mansfield.

STEPS toward further suburban growth of Mansfield become evident in the action being taken to incorporate the Lexington avenue South Boulevards subdivision as a village, so as to carry through the financing of a sewage system adequate for present and future needs.

Just outside of Mansfield's present city limits, and adjoining Woodland, an earlier proposal to take South Boulevards into the city was rejected by council on the grounds that Mansfield is not equipped to extend sewage facilities to additional territory.

Growth of South Boulevards during the past few years, with prospects of an enlarged program of residential construction, seems to justify the efforts of residents to incorporate as a village and install a sewage system, thus adding to the value and desirability of this residential section.

Laughter, Play and Health.

DR. ARTHUR J. TODD, sociologist of Northwestern university, has some cheering advice for hurried and worried human beings. Modern life makes it necessary to watch out for mental and physical health, but that shouldn't mean necessarily "dragging exercise, faddish diets and quack right-thinking formulas," he says.

Instead, he recommends laughter, genuine hobbies, avocations and interests, play that is a joy and not self-conscious.

For a long time a majority seemed to be addicted to spectator sports and passive entertainment. Today, he believes, there is "a constantly growing interest in participation."

The revival of bicycling, skating and horseback riding is evidence of this, as are also the swift spread of skiing and tobogganing, the greatest use of parks and picnic grounds, the outdoor stoves along every nature trail and the development of youth hostels to house the long-distance hiker.

Americans are not less interested in business and success, but they seem to be learning to enjoy life along the way. And that, according to Dr. Todd, is good for the waistline and the nervous system.

Homesteaders' Monument.

THE first quarter-section of land given to a homesteader by the federal government during the Civil war under the Homestead law of 1862 has now come back into government possession. It has been purchased by Uncle Sam from the heirs of the country's No. 1 homesteader. The national park service announces that the property is now the "Homestead National Monument of America" and will be preserved as an item of historical interest. The monument is located near Beatrice, Nebraska.

It is to be hoped the park service will reproduce the original dwelling set up on that place. Was it a sod house? Daniel Freeman, the homesteader, was a soldier in the Union army when he made his claim during a furlough obtained for the purpose. How did he develop his land? How soon did he get the prairie plowed, and what were his first crops?

Many novels have told about homesteaders, their hardships and hopes. Here is the government's chance to tell such a true story and to illustrate it for coming generations of Americans to see and study.

Guy Fawkes Again.

HISTORICAL memories are stirred by the alleged conspiracy to blow up the British Parliament building and Buckingham palace. If the accusations are true, it is strangely like the famous "Gunpowder Plot" for which Guy Fawkes was hanged 333 years ago. Britain continues to celebrate its providential escape from that villainy, and Guy Fawkes day is still a holiday in English schools and colleges.

Perhaps the recent abortive attempt was timed for the same day. That would have made a notable coincidence, and celebration of the two providential escapes would have been simplified.

It is nothing to jest about, however. The present plot, like the original one, seems to have been a serious matter. It is especially unfortunate for both Britain and Ireland that the alleged terrorism, charged to outlawed Irish Republicans of North Ireland, should have broken out just now. This is a time, if there ever was one, for Britain and Ireland to hang together, lest they hang separately.

Less to Ride, More to Sleep.

WHILE railroads are devising ways to encourage passenger traffic by giving reduced rates to the two world fairs—New York and San Francisco—word comes that New York hotels plan higher rates during their fair, starting in April.

The practice of upping hotel rates during the tourist season in resort cities has been quite generally accepted, but New York has been regarded as a pretty much year-round town and the idea of being penalized for world fair attendance is not likely to go down so well with prospective patrons.

Just why an attitude of "getting while the getting is good" should be adopted by ordinarily moderate priced New York hotels is hard to understand. Also it is something that should be considered and discouraged by the world fair management.

'Human Nature,' As It Is Called.

DOWN in Cincinnati, as the story is being told, a man whose philanthropic impulse was somewhat augmented by alcoholic stimulation, started throwing half dollars among mendicants.

When his supply of half dollars was exhausted he began throwing nickels. Then he was booed.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Part of Washington's present entanglement over entangling alliances is due, observers here believe, to a misunderstanding of terms.

No one recently has taken the trouble to explain fully the difference between a policy of "islation" and a policy of avoiding "entangling alliances."

There was a time when some of the leaders of the country, notably John Adams, preferred complete isolation. Lamenting the insistence of hardy American mariners on trading with all nations, he said:

"If all intercourse between Europe and America could be cut off forever, if every ship we have were burnt, and the keel of another never to be laid, we might still be the happiest people on earth, and in fifty years, the most powerful."

An Alliance Even Then.

BUT even in those years the country was forced to abandon any such idea of islation and engage in a hard and fast entangling alliance. To obtain aid from France, the country pledged itself jointly with France that neither would end the war against England without giving the other six months' notice. It was a commitment that Yankee leaders entered into ruefully and finally violated by signing a peace treaty without full knowledge of France, although there were no bitter feelings about it at that time.

That was just about the last "entangling alliance" this country has made. But it has been anything but isolationist. Some of our commercial treaties date back a hundred years or more. We have treaties of sanitation, armament, copyrights, commerce and culture.

Every such treaty has been a step away from "isolation." But has this type of arrangement led toward "entangling alliances," of the kind Washington cautioned against?

In his Chautauqua speech during 1936, President Roosevelt explained the administration viewpoint:

"We are not isolationist except insofar as we seek to isolate ourserves completely from war."

French Alliance Died.

AFTER the World war an honest-to-goodness entangling alliance was written into the Versailles treaty by creation of the League of Nations. One of the collateral treaties President Wilson signed committed us to help France defend the Rhine against Germany. It was designed to be only a temporary treaty, to protect France until the League of Nations could begin to function. But the senate would have nothing to do with the league and the French treaty died with it.

Since then the country has avoided "entangling alliances" but has been anything but isolationist. Immediately after the war this country called the naval conference and signed a naval limitations treaty. Followed then the nine-power and the four-power pacts to respect the open door in China as well as its territorial integrity, and the 50-power Kellogg pact for outlawry of war.

All the shouting about "our well established tradition of isolation" was not directed at such agreements. Even such an "islationist" as Senator Borah was virtually the father, even if not the name-giver, to the Kellogg pact.

What this country needs is a good five cent word that means isolation-from-war without at the same time meaning isolation-from-neighborly-relations.

Patronage Sealed Roberts' Fate

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Roosevelt may be about as popular as ever with the American public in general. The straw polls, for whatever they may signify, all indicate that he does not lose much ground so far as the average of folk are concerned.

However, his influence certainly was at low ebb in the senate the day the solons rejected his appointment of Floyd H. Roberts to the federal bench by a majority of 72 to 9. The senate has turned down presidential appointments before, but that was by the widest margin in American history. On a strict party vote, the White House tenant ought to have won 58 to 23. In fact, he lost 50 to 8, counting only Democratic senators. True, he picked up one independent ballot (Senator Norris'). All the Republicans were against him. Perhaps that was natural — though there are some quite New Dealerish G. O. P. Senators. Senator Shipstead (another liberal, as a Farmer-Laborite) was against the administration, too. And there were 15 absentees. If these absentees had been pro-Roosevelt and had tried very hard, most of them could have been on the job. The truth is that they did not want to vote against the president, but they did not want to vote HIS WAY either. So they were not THERE.

The nub of it is that "F. D." could not control quite as many as 1 in 6 of his own senate Democrats, regardless of other partisans. He did not even hold his New Deal Democratic alignment together. If he had been able to do so, he could have squeaked through.

How Did It Happen?

In the first place, Floyd H. Roberts' appointment to the federal bench in Virginia was not so very important nationally. It is agreed that it was a pretty good appointment also — nothing the matter with Judge Roberts.

But Senators Glass and Byrd of Virginia had made a different selection, and it is recognized that a senator is entitled to dictate federal appointments within his own bailiwick. And here were two senators, in partnership who concurred. It made a strong team.

Other senators are like this: They went political "pap" as much as Senators Glass and Byrd do. If they do not support Glass and Byrd, Glass and Byrd will not support them, in turn. Yet the administration does not regard Glass, Byrd and their ilk as genuine New Dealers; consequently it does not heed their admonitions. It rates them, not exactly as Republicans, but as some other alien political breed; so, when they tell what they want, they do not get it. Nevertheless, there are Democrats (even New Deal Democrats) who still feel that Glass and Byrd are Democrats.

Parenthetically:

Glass and Byrd are no more the same with Neely or Pepper than Capper and Frazier, and Austin and Hale are the same.

The parties are completely split up.

And President Roosevelt has not got either party that he can depend on—not if that Roberts vote means anything.

Moreover, it is a GOOD thing. Checks and balances!

That was the original idea. It has been lost sight of lately.

Listen, World!

Forget It!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M ALWAYS amazed at these people who say they'd "do it all over again" if they could relive their lives. What complacent egotism! Or are they simply incapable of feeling? In either case, they seem as abnormal to me as a five-legged calf, or Nina, the Headless Wonder.

Even so, they're far less harmful than the folk who spend their time looking back . . . perpetually regretting . . . always picking scabs.

It's an easy habit for some folk to acquire. I know, for it's my own worst temptation. I cannot recall one hour of my personal existance which I'd "do over again" if I had the chance. My while existance has been marred by my own selfishness and stupidity. And I have, on several occasions, made irretrievable mistakes which I'll regret until I die.

Nor can I console myself with the popular alibi, "I did the best I knew how." I know doggoned well I didn't! There was never a time when I couldn't have tried a little harder . . . been a little more patient, honest, brave and kind. Many people, having blundered, defend themselves by saying that they "didn't do one-tenth the things of which they stand accused." That's also true in my case. But there's little comfort in the thought when I realize that the score is more than balanced by cussedness they know not of!

In short, you and I are probably in the same boat, partner. We've both messed things up plenty. We know it and we've regretted it miserably. But no amount of remorse or well-wishing can offset the fact or put the pieces together again. There's the record and there it must remain. And there's only one thing we can do about it. And that's—

FORGET IT! STOP LOOKING BACK! PUT IT ALL BEHIND US—AND GO ON!

Gold-miners, knowing the fatal allure and tragic futility of following a worthless prospect through barren soil, have adopted the following slogan: "DON'T THROW GOOD MONEY AFTER BAD!" That phrase serves equally well for the miserable mortal who insists on grubbing in the ashes of his misspent past.

DON'T THROW GOOD EMOTIONS AFTER BAD! DON'T ADD THE WASTE OF TODAY TO THE WRECKAGE OF YESTERDAY!

What dumb clucks we humans are! We spend endless time and energy grieving over some ancient error, yet never feel a pang over the time we waste and the work we shirk while doing so.

IT'S AS SELFISH AND DESTRUCTIVE TO SPEND YOUR TIME RELIVING AND REGRETTING A PAST OFFENSE AS IT WAS TO COMMIT THAT OFFENSE ORIGINALLY. IN BOTH CASES, WE'RE PUTTING OUR OWN CONCERNS OVER ALL OTHER DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES.

Whenever I catch myself indulging in a grief orgy, I remember that oft-quoted story of Lot's wife. God in His wrath against the vileness of the twin cities, Sodom and Gomorrah, had ordered them destroyed — first warning righteous Lot and all his family to flee forthwith and not look back. In haste, Lot obeyed. But midway down the trail, his wife's heart weakened. Behind her lay the loved home of her youth, the dear memories of young wifehood and motherhood. Truly, her duty lay ahead but surely there could be no harm in one last look! . . . And so she looked . . . and, looking, turned into a pillar of salt.

Pillars of salt—life is full of them. Creatures who think they are still living beings . . . but who are as dead as any burnt-out ash . . . their sightless eyes forever turned upon the shadows of the past.

What's Happened?

Week-End Summary of Current Events.

CONGRESS lopped $150,000,000 off President Roosevelt's recent plea for $875,000,000 for WPA. And that meant, Administrator Harrington told reporters Monday, that WPA either would have to lay off 1,000,000 men April Fool's day or start a gradual reduction then that would involve about 1,750,000.

Next day the President, in a message to congress, added that private industry cannot possibly hire so many hands so quickly and pointed out that the average WPA worker has three dependents. So, lest millions of Americans be stranded, Mr. Roosevelt declared an "emergency" exists and asked for $150,000,000. Orderly planning, he continued, "requires that the administrator should know by the early part of March what funds will be at his disposal."

Judge Ruled Out.

The senate, meanwhile, had refused to okay a Roosevelt appointment to the federal judiciary in Virginia. That state's two senators, who had suggested two other gentlemen for the job, had objected to the man the President chose. And in conformance with an "unwritten law," 70 other senators had sided with them, while only nine voted to confirm the appointment.

The loser, Floyd H. Roberts, whose competence had not been challenged, was supported by Virginia's Gov. James H. Price—who, Senator Glass said, had been promised the right to veto recommendations of the state's senators.

In a 2,000-word letter to Mr. Roberts, the President called this statement untrue. And Mr. Roosevelt added that if the Constitution had intended to give the two senators from a nominee's home state the right to veto an appointment "it would have said so."

The Amlie Argument.

Under fire, tooo, was the President's appointment of Wisconsin's Ex-Rep. Thomas R. Amlie to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Among other things, he had written a book of questions and answers. One question in it was whether persons like Vincent Astor, who counts President Roosevelt among his friends, should be allowed to keep their yachts, and the author's answer was: "We would be in favor of Vincent Astor going on 12-month cruises instead of 12-day cruises and taking his friends with him."

That brought a laugh when Amlie's writings were cited at hearings on his theories and qualifications this week. Seriously, he was accused of Communism and incompetence. Amlie denied being a Communist.

Miss Perkins' Defense.

Simultaneously, Labor Secretary Perkins appeared before a house committee considering an impeachment resolution. Confidently and flatly, she denied charges that she had not enforced deportation laws.

How about Harry Bridges? Again Miss Perkins explained that she is awaiting a Supreme Court ruling in another case involving Communism. In that case this week the Communist party filed a brief with the court, denying that it advocates overthrow of the American government by force.

At Home

Utility Harmony?

Optimism sprouted in some business fields this week as a result of a deal between Utility Magnate Wendel L. Willkie and TVA: After months of bickering and dickering, TVA had agreed to pay Willkie's corporation $78,600,000 for its electrical properties in Tennessee. That figure is nearer Willkie's asking price than it is to TVA's original offer. So some Wall Street utility captains considered it a "capitulation" to their point of view by the government and predicted that, if quarreling between the New Deal and the utilities is not renewed, the utilities may begin spending money. That, of course, would increase employment in mines and factories and help business generally.

TVA Director Lilienthal, meanwhile, predicted that private utilities' electric rates throughout the nation will be "comparable to the TVA yardstick rates" within five years.

Scouts' 29th Birthday.

When a Chicago publisher became lost in a London fog 29 years ago, he was timidly approached by a boy in uniform, who said:

"Sir, may I be of service to you?"

Amazed, the publisher allowed the boy to guide him to his destination, then offered a shilling tip. The youth shunned it, explained: "Thank you, but I am a Scout. A Scout does not accept tips for good turns."

The publisher asked about scouting, then returned to America with a trunkful of literature. A few weeks later, he incorporated the Boy Scouts of America. Since then 8,000,000 U. S. youths have promised to "do a good turn daily." This week the organization celebrated its 29th birthday.

Life insurance companies' spectacular growth in recent years—far greater than that of the population — justifies study of the economic influence, but policyholders needn't get scared. With this explanation by government experts, the Temporary National Economic Committee this week began such study.

Final Word "Peace."

Serenity marked the passing of Pope Pius XI at an early morning hour yesterday, and all over the world there was mourning for this man of God who had wrought nobly during his earthly career.

"We still have so many things to do," he murmured only a few minutes before death came, and his final audible word was "Peace."

After Catalonia.

By last Sunday insurgents had squeezed Spain's war-weary government into a slivver of Catalonia only 25 miles wide and had bomb-beaten the hordes of refugees huddled in its hamlets with merciless monotony.

Then the French opened their frontier to the fugitives.

Catalonia was lost. But Tuesday, in the southeastern fourth of Spain which the loyalists still held, this civil war's "Stonewall Jackson," Gen. Jose Miaja, declared: "As long as there is a plot of ground left in my zone we shall fight on."

In France next day, however, Loyalist President Manuel Azana was reported to be on the verge of resigning. So, 'twas rumored, was Premier Juan Negrin.

Convinced, apparently, that Franco had the war in the bag, London and Paris were reported, first, to be considering recognition of his regime as the sole Spanish government, then to be toying with the idea of lending him money.

Irish Interventionists.

On Jan. 12 the Irish Republican Army threatened "to intervene actively" in England if British troops weren't withdrawn from Ireland. Although repudiated by both Eire and North Ireland, the IRA is reputed to be 3,000 strong in England.

And by this week so many bombs had burst that extra guards were posted around the king and queen, and Dublin's government talked of invoking the death penalty to tame the terrorists.

People

O'Daniel's Judgment.

Texas's new governor, W. Lee O'Daniel, deeply embroiled already in controversies over his tax proposals and appointments, became the center of another storm of criticism last week—when he postponed a negro slayer's execution. He said he wanted the condemned man to stare death in the face 30 days longer. Critics said such punishment was "foul" and "inhuman."

Now the governor has asserted that his purpose really was to arouse public opinion against capital punishment. This case, he thinks, "may prove to be the spark which will give us . . . a more human and less cruel method of punishing our criminals."

Charley Ross Alive?

What became of Charley Ross has been America's Unsolved Kidnaping No. 1 since 1874. Now Gustave Blair, 69, a Phoenix, Ariz., carpenter, has gone to court to try to prove that he is the Charley Ross who was snatched near Philadelphia at the age of four and never returned despite his father's assent to a $20,000 ransom demand. He asserts that as a child he was hidden in a cave and dressed as a girl and subsequently given another name.

Ski-Jump Runway.

Getting super-cargo planes into the air is one of aviation's biggest headaches. Germans now report they have shortened the runway requirements 29 per cent by building a 35 degree incline on a hilltop for planes to shoot down.

And speaking of shooting: After losing consciousness as a result of an oxygen failure, U. S. Test Pilot Troy Keith dived toward earth near Shreveport, La., this week at a speed later estimated at 670 miles an hour, then recovered and landed.

Chemists' New Baby.

For years tall tales have been told about what might be possible if the energy locked in an atom could be freed. Now it can be freed, chemists having succeeded recently in thoroughly smashing atoms of two heavy elements, uranium and thorium. So what? One of the atom-busters at Johns Hopkins University, Dr. Robert Dudley Fowler, retorts: "What value has a new-born baby? As far as one can see, it has absolutely no immediate value. But it has great potentialities."
